Senate Leaders Confer Today on Plan to Limit Oratory to Hurry Final Vote.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The senate agreed to sharp limitation on debate today in an effort to send the administration's neuarality bill to the house late this week.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Administration leaders today sought an agreement to limit debate on the neutrality bill as the reported seizure of the government-owned S. S. City of Flint by a German vessel brought a demand for quick action to keep American ships out of danger zones.

Opponents of the administration's neutrality revision program, led by Sen. Hiram W. Johnson (R., Cal.) met to decide whether they will agree to the limitation suggested by Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky.

Sen. Lewis D. Schwellenbach (D., Wash.) declared the reported seizure of the City of Flint was a "demonstration of the necessity of our congress arriving at some conclusion concerning reinstatement of the cash-and-carry provisions in the neutrality act" which expired last May 1.

"I hope the opponents of the neutrality bill will take notice of the ominous nature of this warning," he said. "This is no time to filibuster."

Democratic leaders sought the agreement to assure a final senate vote late this week. Opposition leaders said they believed a vote could be reached without an agreement, but most of them appeared willing to accept some form of limitation.

Yesterday's debate was high-

Huge Antarctic Snow Cruiser Due In City Thursday

Mansfield is due to get a look at Admiral Byrd's big Antarctic "snow cruiser" Thursday night unless the huge transport runs into trouble en route here from Chicago.

Scheduled to leave Chicago today, the "cruiser" probably will reach Mansfield late Thursday to go on exhibition at the G. L. Rogers truck agency on Park avenue east. Members of the crew traveling with the big machine will show visitors through the transport.

The "cruiser" is expected to be in Mansfield overnight and will leave for Ashland Friday morning. It will come into the city on its own power over route 30N from Bucyrus.

Two state highway patrolmen on motorcycles will escort the "cruiser" through the state.

The monster machine, which will be used by Admiral Byrd to transport planes and supplies in the Antarctic, is 20 feet wide and 60 feet long. It requires the width of the average highway for traveling.

Greek Steamer Destroyed, Crew Reaches English Port.

LONDON —(AP)— Fifteen members of the crew of the 5,962-ton Greek steamer Konstantinos Hadjipateras, including the captain, landed at an English port in lifeboats today reporting their ship had been sunk by a submarine in the North Sea.

The captain reported three members of the crew and the English pilot were missing. He said the sinking occurred early today.

Appeals Dismissal

MRS. EDITH METCALF

MRS. METCALF FIGHTS OUSTER

Sales Tax Examiner Appeals to Civil Service, Denies Political Activity.

An appeal had been filed today with the state civil service commission by Mrs. Edith Metcalf, 2 Dunbilt court, who was dismissed last Saturday as a sales tax examiner.

Atty. Lewis Brucker, who filed the appeal for Mrs. Metcalf, said it contained a flat denial of any political activity on her part.

The removal charge, filed by Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt, accused Mrs. Metcalf of campaigning in behalf of former Governor Martin L. Davey when he ran for the nomination in last year's primary.

Complaints against her were said to have been filed recently by certain unnamed persons in Mansfield. Evatt's dismissal action followed receipt of the complaints at Columbus.

Mrs. Metcalf was appointed examiner for Richland county four years ago under the Davey administration. She worked out of the tax office in Mansfield until recently when she was shifted to Norwalk in a reorganization of the state sales tax division which resulted in the closing of the Mansfield office.

BROWDER FREE

Socialite Provides $7,500 Bond for Red Leader.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The socially prominent Mrs. Hester G. Huntington, who came to the aid of Earl Browder "as a matter of principle," posted $7,500 security today, freeing the Communist leader from the federal house of detention.

Browder, Kansas-born general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, was indicted yesterday on charges of fraudulently obtaining and using a passport for travel abroad.

He would have been freed last night, but it was too late by the time Mrs. Huntington, who earlier had produced a $5,000 government bond as security, turned up at the federal building with an additional $2,500 in cash.

So Browder spent the night in a cell.

2 EX-BANKERS GET FEDERAL PRISON TERMS

Spreng Sentenced to 3 Years, Knoll 2 Years on Charges of Embezzlement.

BOTH ENTER GUILTY PLEAS

Attorney Points to Spreng's 30 Years' Service in Plea for Leniency.

A former Mansfield bank employe and an ex-banker from Loudonville were among the three Ohioans sentenced to the federal penitentiary today for embezzlement when they pleaded guilty in federal court in Cleveland.

They are Milton H. Spreng, 54, who resigned as vice president of the Farmers and Savings bank at Loudonville early this year and Clayton Knoll, 33, former bookkeeper at the Citizens National Bank and Trust company.

Akron Man Sentenced, Too.

Spreng was sentenced to serve three years and Knoll two years in federal prison. Both pleaded guilty. Clyde Beese, former Akron bank teller, also was sentenced to two years for a similar offense.

Sentences were pronounced by Federal Judge Robert H. Wilkin.

Spreng was charged with embezzling three small sums, totaling about $200, between 1936 and 1939. Federal bureau of investigation agents said he converted approximately $7,100 to his own use and on these funds made a profit of $5,260.

"This man is broken in health, physically and mentally, since he was indicted," Atty. C. H. Henkel of Mansfield, his counsel said.

"Much constructive good has been done by him during his 30 years service with the Loudonville bank. Twice he tried to leave the bank for another position and twice he was called back. Twice the bank was ready for liquidation and both times he saved it from that."

Tells Of Salary.

Henkel told the judge Spreng was paid a $3,000-a-year salary and rather than ask the directors for remuneration commensurate with his services, he started to dip into bank funds.

The judge, pointing out Spreng's responsibility as an officer, then sentenced him to three years in an undesignated federal penitentiary, probably at Chillicothe, O.

Spreng appeared in court, but said nothing.

Knoll was charged with embezzling $1,000 from the Mansfield bank Aug. 1, 1938, and another $200 last June, but his attorney, J. V. Will, of Mansfield, told the court he had converted between 1933 and 1939 approximately $9,700 to his own use.

The embezzlement occurred, the attorney declared, because

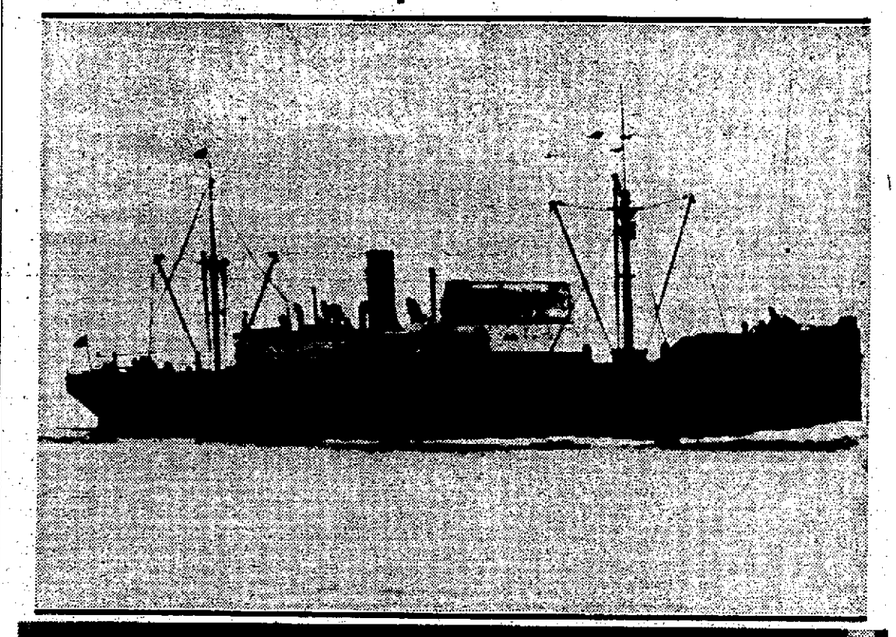
LIFTS BAN ON LIQUOR SALES

State O. K.'s Wholesale Purchase Of Scotch Whisky After 'Panic.'

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Jacob B. Taylor, state director of liquor control, announced today removal of restrictions on wholesale purchases of Scotch whisky through the state stores.

A survey indicated there should be no price increases on Scotch whisky for the balance of 1939 because of the war or any other cause, Taylor said. The purchase limitation was clamped on last September in the face of "panic" buying by wholesale purchasers who feared a price rise because of the war.

Seized U. S. Ship---Finnish Conferees



The American liner, City of Flint, shown at top, was in a Russian port today, after having been seized by Germany while on the way to English ports with cargo listed as contraband. The United States government, while not disputing the right of Germany to halt the ship, was expected to demand her release. The City of Flint picked up 220 survivors from the sunken Athenia in the early days of the war and brought them to America. Bottom picture shows the Finnish delegation which has been carrying on conferences with Soviet Russia. The delegation, which returned to Moscow yesterday, left again today for Finland for further instructions from the Finnish government on Russian demands. Heading the Finnish delegation is Dr. Juho Paasikivi, former prime minister (right).

Legion to Sponsor City's Annual Halloween Parade

Celebration Next Tuesday to Include Traditional Marching of Goblins, Clowns and Witches.

Mansfield will have its traditional Halloween celebration next Tuesday night with McVey post of the American Legion sponsoring it, R. M. James, post commander, announced today.

Walter L. Beckley, who has been named general chairman, will meet with Legion members this evening to complete plans for the celebration.

There will be the parade in which the Legion band and drum corps will take part with prizes awarded for the best costumes.

Started 25 Years Ago.

Once again the long column of gnomes, witches, clowns and strange people will wind over Mansfield's downtown streets as it has for many years. The annual celebration in Mansfield was started almost a quarter of a century abo by the late Fred Hunt as a special treat for his newsboys.

The idea caught the public's fancy and in the later years of Hunt's "Help Hunt Halloween" celebration, thousands of adults and children thronged the streets, most of them in Halloween costumes.

Last year the Richland County Gasoline dealers sponsored the event.

This year the celebration will be confined largely to a big street parade in an effort to keep down Halloween pranks, Beckley said.

STRIKES TRAIN

Switch Engine Collides With Passenger; 2 Dead, 12 Hurt.

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—(INS)—Two passengers were killed and 12 other persons were injured today when the Pennsylvania railroad's Mid-City express, en route from Chicago to Detroit, was sideswiped by a switching engine at Fort Wayne.

The dead were identified as Robert M. Brydon, 64, Chicago, liquor salesman whose home was at Windsor, Ont., and E. V. Salkeld, 46, Birmingham, Mich.

The accident occurred when the switch engine, backing up with two cars just taken from the Southland, Pennsylvania's Chicago-to-Florida express, struck the Detroit-bound train as it was entering Fort Wayne's elevated station. The Mid-City's third and fourth cars—a passenger coach and a sleeper—were derailed. The switch engine also left the tracks.

According to railroad officials all the dead and injured probably were passengers as the only known casualties occurred in the coach.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, has been invited by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) to make the speech nominating the senator for the presidency at the 1940 Republican national convention.

Patterson was selected to deliver the nominating speech for Taft at the Cleveland convention in 1936 but the latter's "favorite son" candidacy collapsed when the bandwagon movement began for former Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas.

G. O. P. PUTS UP 3-POINT PLAN

Opposition to Bigelow Scheme, Business Administration Emphasized at Rally.

Mansfield Republicans opened their municipal campaign with a three-point program last night at a rally attended by about 150 persons at the Brinkerhoff school.

The party's first organized bid for votes was based on opposition to the Bigelow pension plan, a platform promising a straightforward, business-like administration if William J. Locke is elected mayor, and the record of Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch during the past four years.

Principal speakers at the session were Locke, making his first campaign speech; Judge Kalbfleisch, and Philip Wolfe, former service-safety director. Wolfe flayed the Bigelow amendments as "crackbrained schemes."

"There will be no hedging or side-stepping of issues if I am elected mayor next month," Locke said. "I'll solicit counsel from citizens best qualified to give it and

Maps Action To Free Freighter Nazis Captured

State Department Launches Quiz After Germans Take City Of Flint, Bearing 38 Seamen From Torpedoed British Liner; Cargo Called Contraband.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(INS)—Early release of the captured American freighter City of Flint and her crew of 42 was predicted in well-informed foreign circles in Moscow today with disclosure that the Soviet government plans to hand the case over to the United States embassy for disposition.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The American government was expected today to demand that Russia release the freighter City of Flint which was taken into the Soviet harbor of Murmansk by a German prize crew.

It was reported in official quarters that the government would base this request on the ground that Germany, in the absence of extraordinary circumstances, had no right to send the 4,963-ton vessel into a neutral port, regardless of any contraband she might have carried.

While this international aspect of the seizure of the American vessel was fast developing, the White House represented to have taken the view that, in so far as domestic law is concerned, the City of Flint was on a "perfectly legal and lawful voyage."

Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, explained that in making this statement he was speaking only of American laws and did not mean that Germany had no right under international law to seize the freighter.

The question of right of seizure—apparently supported by the Germans on their belief that contraband was aboard—was being investigated by the state department.

The first move of the government, however, will be to seek release of the ship and her crew of 42, in command of Capt. Joseph Gainard. The City of Flint was captured by the German cruiser Emden as a prize of war last week. She was out of New York, bound to Glasgow, Liverpool and other English ports.

Already the American embassy at Moscow has asked the Soviet government what became of the crew and at Berlin the embassy sought an explanation of the seizure.

The low-riding 4,963-ton vessel, one of the rescue ships in the Athenia disaster, was taken late last week by a German naval ship somewhere between New York and Liverpool—presumably near Great Britain.

The capture became known last night when the maritime commission, her owner, announced that the City of Flint had been brought by a German prize crew to Kola bay, on which Murmansk is situated. She flew a Nazi flag.

Tass, the Russian news agency, said that Murmansk port officials detained the ship for the time being and interned the Germans. There was no information here as to the disposition of the ship's original American crew of about 35. The City of Flint carried no passengers.

The state department immediately asked the Russian government for all available information about the seizure. It made the same request of the Norwegian government, for the German crew had put the freighter into Tromso, Norway, for a short time Saturday.

Expectations here were that an inquiry would be directed to Berlin as soon as basic facts had been compiled.

FINNS LEAVE: Envoys Depart With Report on Red Conference

(By Associated Press)

HELSINKI—The Finnish delegation negotiating with Soviet Russia will leave Moscow tonight to return to Helsinki, bringing new written proposals from the Kremlin, a Finnish government spokesman said today.

The spokesman said return of the delegation headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, which arrived in Moscow only yesterday, was "nothing alarming."

"They thought it best to come back to consult the government," said the spokesman, adding that the negotiations would be continued, but it was uncertain whether by Paasikivi or through normal diplomatic channels.

Paasikivi, after preliminary conversations at Russian invitation, returned here Oct. 15 with word of Soviet demands. He and his party went back to Moscow yesterday and were closeted at the Kremlin several hours yesterday afternoon and last night.

The Russian proposals and the Finnish counter-proposals were an official secret.

The latest Kremlin conference, lasting four and a half hours, was the longest yet.

The statement that negotiations would be continued was greeted here with relief, but there was no relaxation in military preparations of this little country fearful of infringement on her independence. Finland once was a grand duchy of imperial Russia.

TURKS MOBILIZE: 300,000 At Border, Defy Russian Demands

(By International News Service)

ISTANBUL, Turkey—Three hundred thousand Turkish troops today confronted large concentrations of Soviet forces below the Transcaucasus region in defiance of Moscow's demands that a slice of present Turkish territory be ceded to the neighboring Armenian Soviet.

"The land sought by Armenia lies immediately west of that unit of the U. S. S. R., and includes the towns of Kars and Ardahan.

This section, now forming a Turkish province, belonged to Czarist Russia, when it had an area of 7,200 square miles. In 1920 it was ceded to Turkey by Armenia.

Until 1878 the Kars-Ardahan section was part of Turkish Armenia. It has a combined Armenian and Moslem populace, speaking a mixture of Russian and Turkish. To the north is Georgia, birthplace of Joseph Stalin and ancestral home of the famous Mdivani family.

The desired province proved one of the stumbling blocks in the recent vain Russo-Turkish pact negotiations in Moscow.

While massing troops in Transcaucasia, the Soviets were said to have told Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu that reunion of the province with Armenia was an essential part of any agreement with Turkey.

Turkey refused flatly, and amassed 300,000 troops in the province.

Paging 'Terry and the Pirates'

ADVENTURE? Terry and Pat Ryan have enough thrills in one day to last most people a lifetime but they love it. . . . and so will you when this new comic strip, "Terry and the Pirates," starts Sunday in the colored comic section of the News-Journal's Sunday edition.

Terry

Terry is an American boy traveling in China with his friend, good-looking Pat Ryan, husky soldier of fortune. Backed up by Connie, their Chinese servant, who spouts wise-cracks in "pidgin English," and Big Stoop, giant Mongolian mute, they're neck-deep in trouble most of the time.

Connie would give his life for his American friends and Big Stoop, whom they rescued from death, thinks only of serving his benefactors. They make a strange pair, the the chattering, active little Chinese boy and his towering, silent companion with the prodigious strength.

There's romance too for these happy-go-lucky Americans who always are but one step ahead of disaster. Terry thinks April Kane is swell and Pat always has at least two beautiful girls interested in him.

Mother Dignifies Puppy Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

With our youngsters going back to high schools and colleges, it's more than likely that many of them will find themselves experiencing the ecstasy they believe to be the "love of my life."

This mother's letter states a problem agitating a good many households at the present time:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"We saved, scrimped and did without, for our daughter to go to the state university. Last year was her freshman year. She did very well until the Easter vacation when she fell for a boy who didn't seem very promising to her father and me. We regarded it as a temporary fascination, or a case of 'puppy love,' and didn't take it too seriously.

"The boy lived in a distant part of the state, and we were thankful when vacation sent him home. They wrote frequently, and my daughter didn't seem to take an interest in any of the boys in our town.

"This hobble-de-hoy whom our daughter regards as a 'Prince Charming' has rotten manners. He never rises, even when he's introduced to a lady, wears his hat in our house, mumbles and says 'Uh huh!' And he has'nt any table manners. doesn't even know how to hold his fork properly. It was a question whether his freshman grades were good enough to admit him to his sophomore year. But unfortunately he did come back.

"My daughter is clever, was an excellent student before this affair began, is ambitious and could have a happy life, if it were not for this boy. Her father has forbidden him to come to the house, and I've told her positively she musn't see him, though I feel sure she sneaks. We have spoken to the Dean, but he can do nothing.

"We're thinking of withdrawing our daughter from college and moving to another city, where my husband has business interests. The girl cries a great deal of the time and we're at our wits' end.

"WORRIED PARENTS."

Aren't you adding another armful of kindling to the fire by the attitude you're taking? You're dignifying an ordinary case of "puppy love" into a great romance, making a Romeo and Juliet tragedy out of the grubby mutual attraction of a couple of kids. There's a contrary streak in human nature, which makes it hanker after the forbidden. You are, it seems to me, helping along this affair at top speed.

Have you thought of lifting the taboo and allowing the boy to come to the house, and at the same time inviting well-bred boys who know enough to remove their hats, stand for an introduction, or when a woman enters the room, and eat without getting a "fiddle grip" on their forks? It's more than likely that your daughter will see the difference, and the undesirable will show up for what he is—a rhinestone in the rough.

If he were a brilliant student, industrious, had ambition, I'd be inclined to overlook his lack of manners. But as you tell me he's stupid and lazy, as well as underbred, there really isn't much to hope for.

A little restrained humor has been known to quash many an unpromising romance. But like vinegar in a good salad dressing, the humor should be applied with the hand of a miser. Utter ridicule applied to the boy will just line your daughter up more determinedly as his champion. Nature has made women defenders of the weak, unfortunate and the oppressed — until they marry them.

Your best bet is not to take this case of puppy love too seriously. Regard the affair with a dash of humor, and here are my best wishes to you.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Yes. I will tell him those things," I said. "If he telephones me tonight, shall I ask him to call you back at the magazine office?"

"Oh! no!" There was panic in her own whisper now. "I beg of you, please do not have him call me back. It would do no good. I—I—am leaving very shortly anyhow, and I do not wish to talk to him. He—he—doesn't know me very well anyhow, and I don't want him to know who I am."

"Very well," I said quietly. "I will give him your message, and while I cannot guarantee that he will not call his office, I will try to see that he doesn't."

"Thank you," she whispered faintly. "You have been very kind—and I do not think you will regret your kindness. Good-bye."

I had more important things to occupy my mind, chief of which was my increasing worry over Dicky's failure to come to the hotel. He had been so insistent that I be with him on this night, when he patently expected trouble, and wanted my encouragement, that I did not know what to make of his continued absence.

With the feeling that any action, no matter how futile, was better than none, I again lifted the receiver of the telephone.

"Have there been any messages for me?" I asked.

"None that you wished to answer," the operator said, and I suppressed an imprecation at his stupidity. I had given orders that no person save those I had stipulated should be connected with me, or should be told that Dicky and I were at the hotel or expected there. But I had given no orders that they were to keep from me the fact that someone had tried to get us.

Has Had Three.

"Will you please tell me what messages you have received?" I asked.

"Three," he answered, "two from a woman, one from a man. They all wished to speak to Mr. Graham; failing that, to you. I told them repeatedly that you were not here and were not expected, but they evidently did not believe me, and said they would call again.'

"Thank you," I said. "Tell me, the next time either calls, would it be possible for you to let me listen to the conversation without their knowing I was on the line?"

"Yes," he said unhesitatingly. "I can do that. But if you do not wish them to guess you are listening, you will have to be extremely careful not to cough, or even to breathe heavily."

"I can manage that," I said. "Please call me the next time one of them calls."

"Very well," the man replied, and I hung up my receiver and began to pace the room.

Why had I not thought of this before? I reproached myself. At any rate, if the conspirators were searching for Dicky, they did not yet have him in their power. But I wanted to be certain that the man and woman calling for us were the ones whose voices I had heard in the restaurant.

I had not long to wait. Less than ten minutes after I had talked to the operator, my telephone signaled, and when I picked up the receiver I heard the hushed voice of the operator.

"Listen!" it said, "and be careful!"

A DIFFERENT GAME

DUPLICATE may be about the same game as rubber contract most of the time, but there are deals which experts handle quite differently at the two games. With rubbers the chief objective usually is to find the safest game contract, whereas in the tournament form a certain amount of straining is justified to find a spot which may produce a slightly better score and thus more match points, if things work out well.

Playing in a duplicate game, one of the best all-round players in New England bid 1-Heart on this deal and his partner bid 3-Hearts. Figuring that his partner probably had the clubs in shape, in view of his strong bid, and desiring the better score that might come from No Trump, East at this stage bid 3-No Trumps.

Had West's heart jump been based on extreme distribution, he would have gone to 4-Hearts; but since it was substantially on high cards, he passed and the side made 4-No Trumps, beating those who did the straight rubber bridge bidding of 1-Heart, 3-Hearts and 4-Hearts.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, October 25.

Quick-moving events with many dramatic possibilities are among the auguries of powerful planetary forces for this day. It is probable that private rather than business interests may engage the attention, as symbols of friendship, courtship, romance and adventure are visible. Certain subtle dangers may arise from intrigue, rash entanglements or definitely dubious plots or schemes. With discretion, good judgment and wise counsel of faithful friends, pitfalls may be avoided.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to an eventful, stirring and surprisingly happy year, if they will exercise prudence and sound judgment, and take the advice of trustworthy friends. Romantic, sentimental and dramatic events are likely to keep things at a thrilling tempo, but at the same time there are omens of plots, schemes and perhaps sinister pitfalls or treacheries. Keep the emotional urges under discipline and exert mental pressure in peculiar situations.

A child born on this day may have a kindly, generous and expansive nature, but it may be "easy" and carried away by emotional stresses or succumb to dubious lures.

IMPORTANCE OF COLOR IN HOME OFTEN IGNORED

Engineer Declares Hues Have Psychological Effect on Inhabitants.

Psychologists have long attached considerable weight to the influence of color on life and health, but the average person has felt little concern over whatever psychological factors are associated with color.

Because light colors are regarded as having a stimulating and cheerful effect on most people, hospitals have usually considered this in choosing colors for their rooms.

Also it is generally conceded that dark colors are likely to be depressing, but not all home owners think of these influences when choosing colors for their homes.

The extent to which industry has explored the science of color is shown by a report of a color engineer engaged to arrange interior decoration of planes. He reported that a green motif would help prevent air-sickness, while brown and yellow might induce it.

The effects of colors on human moods have been described as follows by a doctor who recently studied the subject:

Red Stimulating.

Red: A stimulating color which excites and increases the working power of the brain.

Yellow: A stimulating color which helps energize the brain.

Green: Not necessarily depressing; possesses cooling effects and is useful in the abatement of excitement; counteracts brightness of solar light.

Black: Useful for toning strong colors and not actually depressing; best use is in combinations.

White: Cheery and attracts sunlight; white alone is cold but stimulating if used with red, yellow, or orange.

Brown: Restful and warming, but depressing if used alone; best effects are combined with orange, yellow, and gold.

Purple, mauve: Sedative, soothing, and conducive to sleep.

Most young children prefer red, the report declared, but in later years colors which have a soothing influence, such as blue or green, are preferred.

Whether or not the right colors and color combinations in homes are important for both health and efficiency may still be an open subject, but it is generally felt that the factor should receive consideration from the home owner who is setting out to redecorate his house.

BETTER HOUSES

Progress Made in Materials, Methods in Last Decade.

The house of today is as much advanced over the house of 10 years ago as the modern automobile differs from a 10-year-old machine.

"In the past decade," an FHA official said, "there has been great industrial progress in spite of unsettled economic and world conditions. This progress has been felt in the housing field as in no other. Industry is making homes more durable, more attractive, and more livable.

"As industry makes progress in offering something infinitely better than the homes of the past, the federal government, through the Federal Housing administration, moves to aid this trend toward soundly constructed homes in well-designed and well-equipped neighborhoods by giving the benefit of mortgage insurance to houses which meet these requirements."

Here's Small Cost Home With Wide Appeal

The clean-cut lines of this home and the many advantages offered in its simple design are being recognized more each day by purchasers of small homes. It is an excellent example of how an attractive and comfortable three-bedroom home can be built at low cost. The property was valued by appraisers at $6,200, and the home built with the aid of a mortgage of $4,900 insured by FHA. Monthly payment, including interest, principal, and mortgage insurance, amounts to $35.31.

1,500 CODES

20 Per Cent of Municipal Building Laws 15 to 20 Years Old.

There are more than 1,500 building codes in effect in the United States, all developed by as many independent code authorities; 20 per cent of them have been in existence from 15 to 20 years.

A compromise is an agreement by which both parties get what they don't want.

REASONS PAINT CRACKS LISTED

Experts Blame Excess Amount of Oil, Resin, Non-Elastic Pigments for Faults.

Cracking and scaling are two of the methods by which paint weathers. Some of the causes of this, painters say, are the use of paints containing an excess of hard non-elastic pigments, heavy coats of paint not properly rubbed out, paints mixed with an excess of fatty linseed oil, or cheap paints containing an excess of unsuitable pigments and oils, which form a brittle instead of an elastic film.

Other reasons advanced by paint authorities are: Painting over a peeling, cracking, or scaling old coat without removing the old paint; priming with such pigments as iron oxide, Venetian red, ochre, or Dutch pink; long-deferred repainting, especially when a brittle or semi-brittle paint was used previously; and painting over wood having an excess of resin in it.

All paint experts advise against spacing the paintings over too long periods.

4 State Issues Win Place on Ohio's November Ballot

PENSIONS AND CIVIL SERVICE HEADING LIST

State School Board, Change in Referendum Law Sought in Other Issues.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Four issues that may affect vitally the lives of Ohio's 6,000,000 inhabitants today were assured a place on the ballot Nov 7. The issues, in the order in which they are likely to appear, are:

1. A proposed amendment to the state constitution setting up a state board of education that would have the power to name a director for the department.

2. A proposed amendment that would assure monthly pensions of $50 to single persons and $80 to married couples over 60 years of age, regardless of need, provided they were not gainfully employed.

3. A proposed amendment that would reduce to 100,000 the number of signatures required to assure an initiated vote on any state issue. The present law calls for names of 10 per cent of the voters from 50 of the state's 88 counties.

4. A proposed referendum to keep the administration-sponsored civil service "ripper bill" from becoming a law.

Supporters and opponents of all four questions are waging a bitter battle as the election deadline draws near. Briefly, the issues which voters will be asked to approve or reject are:

The bitterly contested civil service act referendum which was virtually assured a place on the ballot late yesterday when Secretary of State Earl Griffith indicated that supporters had the required 144,700 petition signatures.

While the referendum may affect the lives of thousands of civil service employes, the proposed Bigelow pension plan would touch practically every citizen. Bigelow, of Cincinnati, would reduce the pension age from 65 to 60 and grant a "dole" to every person of that age, regardless of need.

While Bigelow contends that it would require only $60,000,000 to carry out the scheme, opponents assert the bill would exceed $300,000,000 and would disrupt the entire tax structure of the state.

The second Bigelow amendment to be voted on would greatly reduce the number of signatures needed for an initiated vote. Opponents contend that such an amendment would make it possible for a comparatively small group in a large city, like Cleveland, to put a proposal on the ballot for personal benefit.

The board of education amendment, placed on the ballot by the last general assembly, would take from the governor the power of appointing a director of education. However, even if approved, the amendment would not go into effect until the legislature met again to pass enabling legislation.

Such legislation would set up the state board of education which then would have the right to elect a director.

EX-LOUDONVILLE RESIDENT DIES

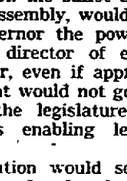
Mrs. Julia Priest, 78, Stricken at Washington; Funeral Tomorrow.

LOUDONVILLE — Mrs. Julia Priest, 78, a former Loudonville resident, died at her home in Washington, D. C. yesterday.

She was the widow of the late Morgan Priest of Washington. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Clark Gray and a grandson of Washington; two brothers, Sherman Schauweker Loudonville, and A. B. Schauweker of Newark; and four sisters, Mrs. Josephine Ecki and Miss Bertha Schauweker of Loudonville; Mrs. B. C. Lewis, Temple City, Cal., and Mrs. C. E. Petot, Cleveland.

The body will be brought to the Gilbert funeral home here tomorrow where services will be held at 11 a. m., with Rev. F. A. Hineman, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be the Loudonville cemetery.

Welcome To—



A son, born to Mr. and Mrs. John Dorman, 293 Wayne street, at General hospital this morning.

CORRECTING AN ERROR

It was erroneously reported by The News-Journal yesterday that two persons, Roy Mason, 145½ North Main street, and Anna Smith, of 216½ North Main street, involved in liquor raids last week were colored. Both are white. The News-Journal regrets the error and takes this means of correcting it.

Leader of 'Silver Shirts' Held In Chicago

Up and Down THE STREET

Bob Walsh of Mansfield who handles the publicity for the Jimmy Lynch's "Hell Drivers" as the daredevils tour the country, has an unusual hobby. He's making a collection of Mansfield pictures—but not his home town. He already has picture taken of Mansfields in Minnesota, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Louisiana, and he writes from the latter place that he is planning on other Mansfield pictures in Pennsylvania, Texas and Georgia. In all of them, he says, there are evidence of Mansfield, O., for this city's products are sold every where.

* * *

Teachers of first grade pupils in Mansfield schools will be "seeing double" this year. Five sets of twins, more than any class has had in recent years, started to school this fall. Not only are they similar in appearance, but they think alike as well, Paul Sparks, school psychologist, has found. In a recent "ability test" each pair had almost identical ratings. Three of the sets of twins are at Bowman school and there is one each at Woodland and Brinkerhoff buildings.

* * *

A carrier pigeon was winging its way homeward today—destination unknown—after a "great adventure" in Mansfield. The bird became trapped in a spouting at St. John's Evangelical church and might have died there but for Billy Klinger, 140 Reba avenue, who heard the bird scratching on the spouting Sunday morning, and saw its small head through a rust hole. With his father, John Klinger, he released the bird, took it home and cared for it until it was well and then released it this morning.

* * *

Jennings Heiser, Nick Linster and Fred Weber now believe all they hear about southern hospitality. The Mansfield trio drove to Knoxville, Tenn., to see Weber's brother, Nick, who is a halfback on the Tennessee team and also to see the game in which Tennessee defeated Alabama, 21-0. They were not only Nick's guests at Knoxville, but the entire football teams. They were housed with the players over the week-end and dined with them and they are convinced that Columbus isn't even in the running with Knoxville when it comes to football madness. The town is literally plastered with pictures of the undefeated team, the Mansfielders say.

WANTS ACTION

County Asks Court to Hurry Opening of Railway Span.

Richland county commissioners sought faster action today in their suit to force the Pennsylvania Railroad company to repair and open for traffic an overhead bridge on a county road in Springfield township.

Representing the commissioners, Assistant Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz filed a motion in common pleas court, asking a date be set for hearing of an application for a mandamus ruling forcing the railroad company to open the bridge.

A court order was issued several weeks ago to require the company to repair the bridge, but the work has not been done and a barricade still prevents use of the span, commissioners said.

The structure spans the Pennsylvania tracks near Springmill. It was closed several months ago by the railroad company as unsafe for traffic.

GRANGE FIGHTS BIGELOW PLAN

Tells Farmers Pension System Would Nullify Present Limit on Real Estate Taxes.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS —The Ohio state grange warned its members and all Ohio farmers today that the Bigelow old age pension amendment would nullify the present 10-mill limitation on real estate taxes.

The grange in this connection noted one of two proposed taxes in the amendment proposing a special 2 per cent tax on land valued at $20,000 or more per acre. It said that the land tax would apply both to land and improvements thereon.

"Therefore, estimating 10 building lots to the acre, all residences valued at $2,000 or over would be subject to the tax," it added.

Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow has denied that the land tax would apply to anything but the land itself.

W. F. Kirk, master of the state grange, said the land tax provision "as it stands would nullify the 10-mill limitation as now in effect and submit all property owners to an 'open season' for the tax spenders."

Kirk also criticized the other tax proposed by Bigelow, a state income tax equal to one-fourth the amount of the federal tax and noted that official estimates held that even the revenues from the two tax sources would fall short of supplying enough money to pay the pensions.

DIES AT AGE 83

Mrs. Mary Feichpner Stricken In Sulphur Springs After Stroke.

BUCYRUS — Mrs. Mary Ann Feichpner, 83, of Sulphur Springs died early today at her home after suffering a stroke six weeks ago.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Albert Shealy of New Washington, Miss Belle Feichpner and Miss Emma Feichpner, both at home, and a brother, Michael Shealy of Liberty township.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

BEAT BIGELOW IF YOU WANT TO KEEP BUSINESS, RETAILERS TOLD

If you want to stay in business, you'd better ring door bells between now and election day. That was the warning the Mansfield Retail Merchants association received at its annual dinner meeting last night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The advice came from James E. Gheen, widely known New York humorist and philosopher. The principal speaker at the gathering, attended by nearly 200, the largest turnout at an annual meeting in the association's history, Gheen was referring to the Bigelow amendments which come before Ohio voters at the Nov. 7 election.

"I was in Colorado where a similar pension scheme was put across," Gheen said. "It hasn't worked there yet and it can't work. They never will be able to raise enough money to pay these pensions.

"You merchants who want to stay in business better get out and ring door bells at once."

A seasoned after-dinner speaker who has spoken in 539 Americanc cities, Gheen's topic was "Telling Tales to Retailers," but his address rambled from the Bigelow plan to the European war—from hints at selling merchandise to his philosophy of life—"I never worry about anything I can't help."

For more than an hour he philosophized but through it all he wove some of the choicest Gheen humor that kept his audience in an uproar.

"You must laugh at life. Keep on laughing. Worry never helped anyone," he said.

He cautioned against letting "our sympathies get away from us" in the European conflict and pleaded for freedom from fear.

"Every business man knows that war hurts business," he asserted.

He decried the millions of hours lost every day in American homes, stores and factories in war talk and emphasized the need for normal living.

Gheen was introduced by Joy A. Herbert, past president of the association and chairman of the program committee.

C. M. Crafton, president of the association, presided at the dinner and presented Mayor Claude M. Hunter, State Representative Ralph C. Lutz of Lexington and R. B. Gardner, state commander of the American Legion.

Three members of the board of directors of the association whose terms expire this year were re-elected. They are L. A. Ott, R. M. Calene and Merle Pecht. Their terms are for three years.

The board will meet next week for the annual election of officers. The annual report of V. H. Lodde, secretary, will be mailed to members within the next 10 days, Crafton announced.

$400 FROM TAGS

Band Mothers Add to Fund for New Uniforms.

Members of the Senior high school band have gotten away to a flying start in their campaign to raise funds for new uniforms. It was reported today that Saturday's tag-day brought in almost $400.

The recently-organized Band Mothers club aided the students in their work and the Chamber of Commerce provided headquarters for the workers. At the end of the day they had raised $391 through the sale of tags, according to Mrs. R. F. Steinbrey, president of the Band Mothers club.

Two weeks ago the club raised $13.13 selling flowers at Stadium field during a game, and the band members had made $15.50 on a bake sale, so that they now have a total of $419 toward the new uniforms.

If new uniforms are secured for the entire band and drum corps, more than a hundred uniforms will be required, and it is estimated that the total cost will be approximately $2,500, members of the club said today.

ARRESTED WITH AIDES IN PROBE OF TERRORISM

Trio Jailed in Connection With Alleged Threats on Jewish Businessmen.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—Police revealed today that Dr. Homer Herman Maerz, 25, whom they identified as Chicago leader of the Silver Shirts, an American fascist organization, had been arrested with two associates and will be questioned today about alleged terrorism against prominent Jewish businessmen.

Maerz testified before the congressional committee on un-American activities, headed by Rep. Martin Dies, D., Tex., during a recent hearing in Chicago on subversive activities in the midwest.

Police Capt. Martin Mullen said Maerz, George Heppner, 35, and Joseph Schimpp, 45, were arrested at their homes yesterday and are held incommunicado on open charges at separate district police stations. He said they will be questioned today by himself and agents of the federal bureau of investigation.

They were arrested after four plate glass windows had been broken with bricks at a branch of the Goldblatt Brothers department store, one of the largest retail houses in Chicago. The company is headed by Maurice, Nathan, Joseph and Louis Goldblatt.

The Goldblatts received a threatening letter six weeks ago which, their attorney said, denounced Jews and demanded $50,000. Its border was stamped with Swastikas. The attorney said he believed it had been written by a crank. Police have been attempting to trace the letter. It has been reported at police headquarters that a threatening letter also was received six weeks ago by a prominent Jewish jeweler but he declined to discuss the report.

SET UP CLINIC

Clubs, P. T. A. Meet Tonight on Indigent Dental Care.

Dental care for indigent school children appeared a step nearer today as representatives of study clubs and Parent-Teacher associations prepared for a meeting tonight at the Chamber of Commerce during which they expect to set up an administrative board to conduct a dental clinic in Mansfield.

Mrs. Ward Ingraham, temporary chairman, said that women's organizations had been requested to send two delegates to the meeting.

Russell Gimbel, director of Friendly House, and John H. Eisaman, school attendance officer, will speak on the need of a dental clinic.

A clinic for indigent school children was first proposed more than a year ago by the Delta Theta Tau sorority. The organization enlisted the aid of several other women's organizations and by sponsoring benefit performances has raised some clinic funds.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Anna M. Wuerchele, Crawford Native, Dies at Age 71.

BUCYRUS — Mrs. Anna M. Wuerchele, 71, died yesterday at the home of her sister and brother here, after a lingering illness. A native of Crawford county, she had lived for several years in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Wuerchele was visiting her sister and brother, Miss Sarah and Charles Harriger of Bucyrus, last summer when she became ill.

The pastor of the Ohio street Methodist church in Pittsburgh to which Mrs. Wuerchele belonged, will preach the funeral sermon at 2 p. m. Thursday in the Munz funeral home. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Setting Things Straight On What We Think About Hitlerism and Communism

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

CLEVELAND—I would like to offer some pear-shaped thoughts today on a subject which has been thoroughly misrepresented.

There is a report abroad in the country that the American Americans, meaning those who believe in the American system of government, the constitution and all, hereafter, called Americans, are determined to prevent the teaching of Communism and Hitlerism, and, as much as possible, to suppress belief in those vices.

That is untrue. The Americans know that if they were to silence such teachings and try to suppress such belief they would therein contaminate themselves with the very evils which they detest so much.

The campaign against Communism and Hitlerism is a defense not against ideas but against intrusion into the politics and other strictly domestic affairs of the United States by organizations operating under the direction of Josef Stalin and Adolf Hitler.

* * *

These organizations—the Communist party and the anti-American Bund—say they aren't under orders and don't receive their support from Stalin and Hitler, respectively. But the Americans say that, dammit, they are and they do. It has been proved to the satisfaction of the Americans that they are and do, and that verdict is final.

Anyone who believes in Stalinism or Communism may preach himself hoarse, subject, of course, to local and personal deviations from the straight line of Democratic tolerance.

Now, how did we reach the verdict that these groups are agents of foreign dictators and carrying out their orders?

Earl Browder himself was the witness who convicted the Communist party.

Never mind the testimony of Ben Gitlow, who said he stood trial in Moscow, and, by Stalin's orders, was removed from the leadership of an organization purporting to be an American political party.

Skip the fact that Stalin then appointed Browder head of a Russian political branch store operating here without even a perfunctory nod to the democratic method. Ignore the fact that Browder and Gitlow, present and past dictators of the party here, used fake passports to travel in the interests of the Soviet government. All that is just background.

* * *

The verdict of guilty was cinched by Browder himself when he said the American party members had to believe in and refrain from criticising Stalin's deal with Hitler. Whether it was a decent or indecent deal is beside the question. Browder laid down the law, which means that even if Stalin made an alliance with Japan or Germany or both to attack the United States the members of his party would have to side with Stalin.

Several members of Stalin's American branch wanted to reserve judgment on his Hitler deal, but they weren't even allowed to do that. They had to approve it or get out, and a few of them gagged on that ultimatum and did get out. That is Browder's idea of freedom of speech and thought.

* * *

Well, how did the Americans arrive at the conclusion that the Nazi anti-American Bund is a branch store of the Hitler government?

They convinced themselves of the foreignness and anti-American purposes of the Bund by comparing it to the other bunds of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland, which masqueraded in the same garb, manners and tricky pretense of loyalty, but meanwhile served as secret police, military spies, wreckers and disrupters, and finally, opened the gates from the inside, delivered the countries over to Hitler and put the finger on loyal patriots, who were then taken out and shot by German firing squads.

* * *

These are the reasons why the Americans turned on the Communist party and the Bund.

The teaching of their poison is neither forbidden nor feared, because the more Americans learn about them the more clearly they realize that treachery, treason and service to enemies of the American people and their system are inherent requirements of both of those isms.

Americans just naturally choke on them and spit them out.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — A feather would have floored me the other eve when a slim and pretty young thing in white walked past in the exciting preview crowds—and turned out to be Jane Withers, the new glammer gal. What, by the way, has happened to that old movie tradition about the "awkward age" taking its toll of child stars? The youngsters don't have awkward ages any more, maybe. Jane is 13.

Romantic query: Sequel to "Brother Rat" reunites the same romantic teams of the original film. In "Brother Rat and the Baby," Eddie Albert and Jane Bryan, Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane, Ronald Reagan and Jane Wyman are paired. Morris, who was going with Priscilla then, has since married, and Priscilla is going with Oren Haglund. Reagan and Jane Wyman, however, have made it real-life romance. Which pair will give the more convincing romantic scenes?

A lot of people I know who are singing for money could read Charles Henderson's tome with profit. Its "How to Sing for Money."

The "scorched earth" policy hit Hollywood when "The Grapes of Wrath" got under way. They used sun-arcs, a score of them, focused on the ground of the backlot to give the dirt a hard, Dust Bowlish crust. And then the rains came.

This back-to-the-corset era: Joan Bennett's had her ears pierced.

* * *

Home is the stranger. Harry Green, who's been publishing penny-dreadfuls in England, and pursuing various theatrical activities including a play the war kept him from producing, is acting again—in "Cisco Kid and the Lady."

Newt Williams, the head grip, has his own efficiency ideas. For instance: The entire crew of grips assigned to push the camera in dolly shots were middle-aged or beyond when they worked on the dance numbers in Zorina's "On Your Toes."

His reason: "Younger fellows forget themselves and push the camera too far or too slow. I try to save them for pictures like 'Return of Dr. X.' There's nothing about Bogart's face or figure to make a fellow forget his work."

* * *

Bulletin from aboard:

Leslie Howard and family returned to England, and the four new cars they ordered from Detroit were waiting for them at their country home. Also waiting was the government gasoline-rationing order: they have bought four motorcycles. Thirty-two evacuated city children are with the Howards. The eldest Howard boy, 21, is now with the British fleet. (Leslie himself, gassed in the last war, is a reserve officer but not subject to active or "front" service.)

That baby of the Nick Charleses in "The Thin Man" is William K. Poulsen, jr.—but the name (Powell's son) is only a coincidence, not a publicity tie-up. The year-old-boy was selected simply because he's so goldarned cute . . . "Papa Nick," Powell, incidentally, never looked better, and declares he has forsworn the joys of invalidism.

INSPECT FARM

Richland Farmers, Soil Specialist On Erosion Tour.

A group of Richland county farmers, headed by County Agent George B. Ganyard and Earl Jones, soils specialist from Ohio State university, visited the G. A. Mentzer farm near Lexington today on a county erosion tour.

The farmers inspected soil saving practices. Jones talked on erosion control measures and described the means used on the farm.

Azzi Ratem System Names Notre Dame.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Notre Dame today was named the strongest college football team in the country by the Azzi Ratem system of ranking. Oklahoma was placed second and Cornell third, with the next elevens ranked in this order: Tulane, Ohio State, North Carolina, Penn, Michigan, Texas A. and M., Duquesne, Southern California, Tennessee, Kentucky and Pittsburgh.

Flock of High School Games Set for Thursday

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

RUSS MURPHY, who scouted Ohio State in the Missouri, Northwestern and Minnesota games, must have thrown a scare into his boss, Carl Snavely of Cornell.

After listening to the ex-Mansfield coach's report on the Minnesota game, Snavely told reporters "They're not going to ruin my team for the rest of the season. If Ohio runs up an early lead—and I don't see how we can hope to harness its power—I am going to use my subs and save our regular for future Ivy league dates We have a typical Ivy league team this year and have no business tangling with a Big Ten power house"

Cornell plays the Bucks Saturday, you know, but don't think that for a minute that Snavely is bringing his team to Ohio just for a train ride.

A poor decision by the Mt Vernon high captain proved costly for the Jackets in their game with Shelby Friday night, the Whippets winning, 13-7. Just before the end of the first half after Shelby scored, the Mt. Vernon leader was asked by officials whether he cared to kick or receive He said "kick." Two or three plays after the kickoff, Shelby scored on a pass which proved to be the winning touchdown. Had the Jackets elected to receive, the Whippets would probably not have been offered a chance to handle the ball again in the first half

Tennessee First Choice For Rose Bowl Classic

Vols Put Themselves Far Out In Front of Race For Bid By Defeating Alabama.

By RALPH B. JORDAN

PASADENA, Cal.—(INS)—The University of Tennessee today practically was en route to the Rose Bowl, providing of course the Vols don't trip themselves by tossing off a contest or two between now and next Jan. 1, and they won't, judging by their skill against Alabama last Saturday, and their schedule, which looks like a smooth path from here on in

The Vols, by throwing back the Crimson Tide 21 to 0, put themselves so far out in front in the race to the flowery bowl that their invitation now seems to be a mere formality The Pacific Coast conference, which invites the eastern representative to meet its champion and the good people of the Tournament of Roses, who furnish the setting for the annual grid classic, like Tennessee, its spirit, the school, the coach, Major Boy Neyland, and the team.

* * *

That about makes its unanimous for the eastern squad, which more often isn't eastern at all, but southern. Alabama has been to the Rose Bowl so much, and incidentally with rare success, that the Tide is greeted with a welcome home spirit in Pasadena now.

* * *

There are other reasons, too, for this land of cotton preference. The Dixie teams always put up a whale of a fight, are colorful and like to play in the bowl.

They please the fans, and also the coast conference and Rose Bowl folks by their eagerness to play, as contrasted with the past attitude of certain eastern teams—an attitude or "we'll think it over and let you know, big favor for you if we play," and that sort of thing Of course, there also is the fact that the field is narrowed down considerably by Big Ten and Ivy league stands against post season games, and the lack of interest in them by the Irish of Notre Dame.

* * *

On the coast, the western bowl candidate still is shrouded in mystery, with the prevailing opinion none too high about the west's chances against any top flight invader.

* * *

The boys on the coast have been kicking each other around, with none showing much class or skill. The Trojans of Southern California, last New Year's champs and a heavy favorite to repeat, barely eked out a tie with Oregon and little Gonzaga knocked over Oregon last Saturday. Oregon State still is undefeated, but hasn't scored impressively. U. C. L. A. has been tied and California, Stanford and Washington have had lots of trouble, and a number of losses.

New 'Big Four' Champion Seen

Western Reserve Not Likely to Repeat This Year.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— With 80,000 shouts from the Notre Dame-Navy game just an echo now, Cleveland's football faithful today turned their eyes to the hometown talents show—the Big Four race which promises to produce a new champion for the first time in its seven-year history

The Big Four was formed in 1933 by Western Reserve, Case, John Carroll and Baldwin-Wallace The first season the race ended in a four-way tie as each team won one and lost one.

* * *

For the next five seasons, Reserve went undefeated in conference play to take the championships With a wealth of material back in the Red Cat camp, fans saw little chance to snap the string this fall.

* * *

But last Friday Baldwin-Wallace stopped the titlists, 8 to 7, and the competition was thrown wide open Case already had topped the Yellow Jackets, 7 to 6 Next Saturday the Rough Riders battle untested Carroll

The catch line got started as Carroll announced that its star back, Eddie Arsenault was in the hospital with "bulging jaws"

The Blue Streaks still hope Eddie will be able to play Without him, Case could hold a definte edge.

Mused Case's Coach Ray Ride. "Maybe we can get the health department to slap a quarantine on him After all, we can't expose our boys to the danger of catching mumps"

AKRON —(INS)— The Akron Garfield high school football team today was minus four regulars and four reserves for the rest of the season, but a little thing like candy stealing wasn't enough to expel the boys.

The board of education last night failed to act on a motion to expel the eight, who helped themselves to candy and merchandise when their bus stopped for gasoline at Townsend, O., Saturday while returning from a game in Toledo.

All merchandise was returned, and the boys chipped in $5 to pay for the candy they had eaten when Lorain county deputies stopped the bus at Elyria. The eight guilty boys were suspended by Principal A. D. Ladd amid student complaints that he was "wrecking" the team.

Dead Teammate Gets Letter in Floral Piece.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Jimmy Pell gets his Holy Name high school football letter Thursday.

STEELE CHANGES MIND, DECIDES ON COMEBACK

SEATTLE Wash.—(INS)—Former middleweight champion Freddie Steele, who announced after his one-round knockout by Al Hostak that he would never fight again, was on the comeback trail today.

Steele has signed with Eddie Meade, manager of welterweight champion Henry Armstrong, and probably will make his first comeback appearance in Los Angeles within a month or six weeks.

Tom Paces Michigan Attack

Tom Harmon, junior halfback from Michigan, was the leading Big Ten Ten scorer after the second week of Conference play. He earned the place by scoring 27 points against Iowa and 18 against Chicago.

McCullough, Cornell's Halfback, May Cause Ohio State Trouble

'He's as Good as They Come,' Scout Gomer Jones Warns Bucks Coaching Staff.

COLUMBUS—(U P)—They stopped Paul Christman of Missouri, Bill De Correvont of Northwestern, at least slowed up Hal Van Every of Minnesota and now comes Harold McCullough of Cornell as a triple-threat left halfback to Ohio State gridiron success

The 170-pound Brooklyn, N Y., product on Cornell's undefeated Big Red eleven is "as good as they come," Scout Gomer Jones of the Ohio State coaching staff warned today.

"MuCullough is the key man who can run, kick and pass in grand style on a team that ranks as the best in the east," Jones reported to his superior, Francis Schmidt.

* * *

Gomer watched Cornell wallop Penn State, 47 to 0, by a surprising margin last Saturday and earlier had witnessed a 19 to 6 victory over Syracuse. Fritz Mackey, who scouted the Big Red in their 20 to 7 conquest of Princeton backs up Gomer's description, adjective for adjective.

* * *

Coach Carl Snavely will bring an especially alert eleven to Columbus on Saturday for the "game of the week" with the Buckeyes who also are unbeaten.

Jones said the Cornell gang demoralized Penn State in the first five minutes by picking two Penn State fumbles out of the air and racing for touchdowns The same alertness to take advantage of breaks and mistakes of the opposition has been a Cornell characteristic all season.

Sharing the individual spotlight with McCullough are Whit Baker, right halfback, Walt Matuszczak, quarterback, and Nick Drahos, right tackle.

Baker, one of only two seniors on the first string, is an adept pass tosser and receiver. Matuszczak, a 200-pounder, is one of the game's great blockers who "loves his work," according to Jones. Drahos is a six-foot, three-inch 200-pound plus tackle who also likes the battle rough.

Ohio State probably will have a weight advantage over the Big Red Saturday and possibly an edge in reserve strength, it was deduced from Gomer's report.

Asked how Cornell compared with an "average" Big Ten team, Gomer replied: "Well, they're the best in the east."

No matter what the comparison, Schmidt is worried about a natural letdown by his Bucks after their strenuous 23 to 20 triumph of Minnesota.

* * *

"It's only natural for the boys to ease up," Schmidt said. "The fact that Cornell is a non-conference team won't help any."

* * *

The Bucks took things easy yesterday with reserves getting the heavy work. The squad looked over motion pictures of the Minnesota game and became more convinced than before that Jim Langhurst and Ohio were unjustly deprived of an 81-yard touchdown run. The pictures reveal no backfield in motion violation as ruled by the officials.

Kern to Leave Carnegie Tech?

Rumors Flood Campus After Team Loses to N. Y. U.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— The fast-moving Pittsburgh collegiate athletic situation gained momentum today amid a flood of rumors that Bill Kern would leave his football coaching job at Carnegie-Tech

The only holdover at the city's three major colleges, Kern would neither confirm nor deny the reports. He was "satisfied" at Carnegie, said the coach, but "naturally I would be interested in improving myself"

The rumors climaxed a whirlwind week-end in which two of the city's three big teams were beaten for the first time this year. Little Duquesne upset Pitt's Panthers while Carnegie dropped a 6-0 decision to the Violets of New York university

Max Hannum, Carnegie publicity director of athletics and basketball coach, said the school was very well satisfied with Kern's work, adding he could "have his position here as long as he wants it."

Bluejays Seek 7th Straight

Unbeaten Bellville Club Engages Ashley; Crestline Plays In Marion Friday.

By CHARLES MARTIN

GRIDIRON hostilities in Richland and nearby counties will be resumed a day earlier this week as the majority of high schools close Friday to allow teachers and principals to attend the annual teachers' meetings

Headlining Thursday afternoon's five-game program is the clash between undefeated Bellville and Ashley on the Bellville greensward. The powerful Bluejays, tied for district honors with Crestline, will be gunning for their seventh consecutive victory.

* * *

The only other Richland county combine scheduled for action Thursday is Butler, which will be seeking its first win of the season when it entertains Heborn high.

* * *

Other contests in this vicinity finds the Red Birds of Loudonville high playing hosts to Fredericktown, Mt Gilead invading Danville and New London at Clearfork.

On tap for Thursday night is a tussle between the Galion high Orangemen and Bucyrus in a Pine, Brown Headline Mt. Vernon Mitt Card.

Lloyd Pine, Akron featherweight star, will meet Mickey Brown of Cincinnati in a 10-round bout labeled for the featherweight title of the state in the Mt. Vernon armory Wednesday night. Brown recently defeated Pine.

Willie Russell, of Columbus, Ohio, lightweight king, meets Ray Taylor of Cincinnati in the semi-final bout on the 30-round card.

Neighborhood Aces Lead State Scoring

COLUMBUS—(AP)—New pacemakers led Ohio's high school football scorers today as the result of week-end frays which saw eight teams hurled from the unbeaten-untied class and left only 23 of the 441 squads with unblemished records.

Alliance's Hillis Hume, idle as the result of injuries suffered in the Massillon game a week ago, was shoved from first to fourth place in the scoring race as other star performers did their stuff.

The new leaders are Howard Hamilton of Bellville, who scored 27 points against Sunbury last week, and Bob Frye of Crestline. Each has 95 points, and they are the big reasons their teams have won six in a row.

Back of them is Bob Shaw, shifted from end to quarterback at Fremont Ross, who galloped 92, 74, 75 and 55 yards for four touchdowns against Tiffin Columbian to surge up to 85 points. Hume is next with 84.

North Central Ohio conference setto in the latter city. Both teams will be after their first conference triumph

Coach Merle Hutson's Crestline Onondagas, led by the "touchdown" twins Phil Ganni and Robert Frye, will attempt to annex their seventh straight against Marion St. Mary's at Marion. One other game under the lights Friday sends Ashland to Mt. Vernon

Saturday afternoon contests will be topped by the Mansfield high-Akron Kenmore tilt at Stadium field. Marion plays at Shelby in another Saturday afternoon meet.

Considerable interest will focus on Bellville Thursday as Co-captain Howard Hamilton tries to break the deadlock between himself and Bob Frye of Crestline for individual scoring honors in this district. The two backfield aces are tied with 95 points.

* * *

Frye will have his chance Friday. Incidentally, he and Ganni have scored all but two of the touchdowns tallied by Crestline this year. Ganni is in third place in the individual scoring with 63 points.

* * *

Loudonville may have its hands full in stopping Gregg, Fredericktown's rampaging fullback, who has scored 50 points to jump into fourth place in the scoring column.

Coach Royd Hodge's Bellville club at present is pacing the team scoring by a 14-point margin over Crestline The Bluejays have collected 184 points and Crestline a 170.

Times Have Changed, Chicago Gridders Learn

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO —(AP)— A lot can happen in 30 years and has in the football situation at the University of Chicago

Just 30 years ago tomorrow The Daily Maroon, student newspaper, suggested that Chicago Michigan, Wisconsin Minnesota and Illinois were too strong in football for another group of teams in their organization

* * *

"It seems to us," the paper said, "that a rearrangement would work for the betterment of general athletic conditions." It added that a league composed of the above teams would make "an admirable combination of comparatively well matched teams."

* * *

Today an editorial in the same Daily Maroon says the University of Chicago's inept and undermanned football team is getting to be a joke in the eyes of the American public and a sore spot in the alumni

"Our school has become a benevolent institution furnishing material on which newspaper writers all over the country may practice clearness when they have nothing better to fill space

"For the football team however the matter isn't such a big joke. Each week a small group of young men go out on the field to be overwhelmed in body and spirit so that a few hundred spectators may pass several dull hours of the afternoon For their reward the players get derision This might be good moral training for martyrs but football players are human beings too"

The Maroons have won one of four games, beating Wabash 12 to 2, and have scored only those 12 points to 154 by Beloit, Wabash, Harvard and Michigan. The latter routed them Saturday, 85 to 0

* * *

Dr Hutchins witnessed the slaughter of his boys by Harvard and Michigan and after the latter game Saturday, he went to the team's locker rooms to cheer up the squad

"Don't let the score bother you, the team played a good game today," one of the players quoted the president as saying. "We were all too amazed by the appearance to remember very much of what he said," one player explained.

Harold Doolittle of Tracy & Avery Club Leads Scoring With 630 Total.

A 630 TOTAL by Harold Doolittle of the Tracy & Avery team of the Club league was high in the individual scoring column at the Meder alleys last night. Starting with a 231 and finishing with 247, Doolittle led his team to a pair of wins over the Mansfield Savings Bank.

Jim Wallace of the J. A. C. club pounded the uprights for a 598 count, but his team dropped three games to the Schoolmasters, who moved into a three-way tie for first place with the Kiwanis club and Richman Clothes.

* * *

Joe Blahnik of the Commercial Managers rolled his first 200 of his short bowling career last night when he collected a 203 in the middle tilt. The Managers won three from the Optimists.

* * *

The Richman club dropped two games to the Lumbermens Mutuals and the Kiwanians did likewise in their match with the American Legion, who won team scoring laurels with a 2722 total.

The Liederkranz club piled up 2674 pins, but lost three games on the handicap to the Page Dairys in the other match.

* * *

The East Side Nite club held on to first place in the Commercial C league by sweeping its series with the Ringside Cafe. The Dominion Electrics won three from the Hecht & Casey Coals to remain a game in the rear. Ealy of the Safety Cabs led the scoring with a 548 count as his team won a pair from the Siegenthaler Shoes.

SEABISCUIT TO START ON COMEBACK TRAIL

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Charles S. Howard's great thoroughbred Seabiscuit has returned to Tanforan racetrack to train for a comeback which might make him the greatest money-winner of all time.

The six-year-old stake star, 1938 champion of American turfs with his brilliant triumph over War Admiral, came down with a leg injury last winter on the eve of the $100,000-added Santa Anita handicap. He was taken to Howard's Ridgewood ranch in northern California for rest and treatments.

THESE GRID TEAMS FIND WAY TO END TIE GAMES

MINNEAPOLIS—(AP)—They've found a way out of the troublesome situation of tie football games out at Langdon, N. D.

There Starkweather and Pembina teams, playing for the regional six-man football title, wound up in a 12-12 tie. They agreed to allow each team four overtime plays, and Starkweather won, 14 yards to 11.

BURMAN WINS

NEWARK—Clarence Burman 190 Baltimore knocked out Joe O Gatti, 190 Toms River N. J. (6).

BUCKEYES IN FILM

Mansfield football fans who follow the progress of the undefeated Buckeyes of Ohio State will have a chance of seeing action shots of the Bucks 23 to 20 win over Minnesota at Minneapolis last Saturday. The pictures are included in a news-reel which opens at the Madison theater today and continues through Friday.

PAM—Shock? By A. W. Brewerton

WHAT — WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO PAUL, COLONEL CAREY?
I — WELL — I DIDN'T MEAN TO BLURT IT OUT LIKE THIS, MY DEAR--
--- MEANT TO SORT OF LEAD UP TO IT — DIDN'T WANT TO TELL YOU SO — SO SUDDENLY - MIGHT BE A SHOCK TO YOU AND --
FOR GOODNESS SAKE, COLONEL! WHAT IS IT?
WHY — WHY, IT'S THIS, PAMELA — PAUL IS ENGAGED TO BE MARRIED!!
OH! — IS — IS THAT ALL? WHY--
- WHY, THAT'S SWELL NEWS! — I'M GLAD, FOR PAUL'S SAKE! — COLONEL, PAUL DID THINK HE CARED FOR ME, AT ONE TIME, BUT I NEVER WAS IN LOVE WITH HIM!
WELL, ISN'T THAT JUST DANDY!!
THE KIND-HEARTED OLD COLONEL! -THINKING PAM MIGHT CARE FOR PAUL, HE HAD FEARED HURTING HER WITH THE NEWS!

LIST CONFINES MOVEMENTS TO NARROW RANGE

Leaders Shift Indifferently Despite Individual Strong Spots in Market.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Individual strong spots were present in today's stock market but many leaders shifted indifferently over narrow range.

In early dealings modest gains were posted for U. S. Gypsum, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, American Smelting, American Telephone, Western Union, North American and Yellow Truck.

Backward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Westinghouse, Sperry, Glenn Martin, Montgomery Ward, Kennecott, Goodyear and Caterpillar Tractor.

European news was no more war-like than in the past week or so and, brokers said, seemed to be a minor influence market-wise. Announcement Nazi Foreign Secretary Von Ribbentrop would make an important speech later in the day was also seen as a trading restraint. Bonds were selectively higher and commodities mixed.

The financial district studied the figures of federal reserve member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Wednesday which disclosed reduction of $2,000,000 in loans to commerce, industry and agriculture following eight consecutive weekly increases during which the aggregate expanded $376,000,000.

For the same week debits to individual accounts were 11 per cent above the previous week's total, but 13 per cent below the corresponding period last year. The latest week included only five business days in most centers.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)— Frank Pisano, 24, who had served two years of a 25 to 50 year sentence for robbery, died today of internal injuries received in the first prison football game of the season

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 2 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills

GIVE PROGRAM

Apollo Entertainers Appear at Senior High Thursday.

A program by the Apollo Entertainers will be presented during the Senior high assembly at 10 a. m. Thursday at the school. It will be the first of a series to be presented for the students by professional entertainers.

Elsie Sperandeo, pianist, and Geovanni Sperandeo, lyric tenor, comprise the Apollo team. They will give a program dressed in native Italian costumes.

* * *

Plans are being completed for a hayride and barn party to be held Saturday night for members of the school's A Capella choir. Arrangements are in charge of a committee comprised of Richard Sparks, chairman, Gladys Kerr, and Robert Earley.

* * *

The 12-A class will sponsor a skating party Thursday night at the Coliseum. The party is open to all students of the school and tickets are being sold by members of the senior class. Harold Williams, president, is in charge of arrangements.

PRESS FOR VOTE ON NEUTRALITY

Advocates of Embargo Repeal Cite U. S. Ship Seizure as Reason for Action.

lighted by a personal attack by Administration Whip Sherman Minton, (D.-Ind.) on isolationist Gerald P. Nye, (R.-N. D.) former chairman of the special munitions investigating committee.

Minton referred to the many lectures "at so much per" which Nye has made throughout the country on disclosures of the munitions investigators, and said the North Dakotan had "made more money out of his investment than du Pont."

"He's been on every side since the question of arms embargo has been before the senate," Minton added, pointing out that in 1938 Nye urged repeal of the embargo imposed on shipments of arms to Spain during its civil war.

When Nye replied that he had never urged embargo repeal as it applied to a war between nations, Minton shouted:

"A man who has been killed with a bayonet is just as dead if he got a thrust in a civil war as during a war among nations."

Senator Rush D. Holt, D., W. Va., then asked permission to print in the record a statement of "senatorial inconsistencies" on the embargo question since it was first raised, by was blocked by Senator Tom Connally, D., Tex., who said that such a statement would be "on its face intended to reflect upon senators" and probably would represent the effort of some "ghost writer."

"I write my own speeches, which is more than I can say for some senators," Holt retorted. "I don't have to go to Charlie Michelson (Democratic national committee publicity chief) for them."

"I don't think Charlie would write one for you if you did go," Connally shot back, adding that "this is just an example of what I mean when I say the senator from West Virginia wants to reflect on senators."

2 EX-BANKERS SENT TO PRISON

Spreng Sentenced to 3 Years, Knoll 2 Years on Charges of Embezzlement.

Knoll was paid only $60 a month the first two years after he went to work for the bank in 1927, and was given small increases until he was raised to $150 a month last spring. Knoll has a wife, who appeared in court today, and two children.

The embezzlement developed from need, and then turned into gambling with the money, the attorney said. The penitentiary in which Knoll must serve the two years was not designated, but it was indicated it would be either Chillicothe or Milan, Mich.

Beese was indicted for embezzling $1,150 from the Akron bank in 1936.

Knoll has been held in the Cuyahoga county jail at Cleveland unable to furnish a $2,000 bond set on Sept. 9, the same day he was arrested here by federal agents. He resigned his position July 5.

Officials said the discrepancies in his accounts were discovered following his resignation.

Spreng, who disappeared after he left the bank, gave himself up to federal authorities and was arraigned in Cleveland on Aug. 8. He was released on $2,500 bond.

He disappeared from Loudonville on Feb. 18. His automobile was recovered 10 days later in Dayton. In March he was recognized on a Chicago street by a friend of the family who brought him back to Mansfield.

'Y' GOES OVER TOP IN DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

205 New Memberships Signed Up as Campaign Closes, 5 More Than Goal.

Exceeding its goal of 200 new members, the Mansfield Y. M. C. A. last night closed one of the most successful enrollment campaigns in its history.

Two hundred and five new members were signed up during the campaign which closed last night with a dinner meeting of workers and Hermit club members at the "Y."

In addition to the new members, 222 renewals of present memberships were also reported. The renewal goal was set at 300.

"The renewal drive will continue through the month of October as there are still some workers to report," Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary said.

Workers last night turned in 130 new members, while 75 were reported at the first report meeting last Thursday. They also turned in 160 renewals.

Shortest Drive In Years.

"The 1939 enrollment campaign was one of the shortest and snappiest ever held by the 'Y'," Chapman said. "In past years the goal has always been reached but not without extending the time."

D. O. Meese, campaign chairman, told the workers the success of the drive can be attributed to the fine response they received throughout the community.

"Every day the Y. M. C. A. is becoming more favorable with the citizens of Mansfield," he said.

Special recognition was given 11 workers who turned in the most new members and renewals. Working as a team, William Mabee and Harold Dysart turned in 26, and Earl Troll and James Hoffman, 29. Individual high point men were Lowell Bourns and Irl Fisher, 20 each, Robert Remy, 18, R. M. Calene, 10, Rev. Peter Young, 11, Henry Schwier, 10, and A. M. Colby, 12.

The drive opened Oct. 23 with 40 volunteer workers assisting. Committee chairmen were Robert Stevens, prospect; Chester Shultz, publicity, and Jesse Beer, program. The renewal drive was headed by Orlo L. Smith. Robert Remy is chairman of the "Y" membership committee.

Holds 119 Names Invalid on Civil Service Petitions

The county board of elections ruled out 119 names yesterday in a check of 14 Civil Service act referendum petitions containing a total of 505 signatures.

Approximately 23 per cent of the signatures were illegal as compared with only 10 per cent of a previous batch of 64 petitions.

The petitions checked yesterday were supplemental to the others and were circulated by proponents of the referendum after signatures on earlier petitions fell short of the required number.

With approval of 386 signatures yesterday, the total number on 78 petitions circulated in the city and county mounted to 2,411.

If a sufficient number of signatures on petitions throughout the state are legal, the Civil Service referendum will go on the ballot at the Nov. 7 election.

DRIVE OPENED

Bucyrus Starts Campaign for $10,200 Community Fund.

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus Community Chest drive officially opened Monday night with a dinner at St. John's Reformed church which was attended by 100 workers.

No speakers were scheduled on the program although leaders of the various groups talked briefly. Chairman Charles W. Wilson presided and explained the plan of securing pledges.

The group will make its first report at a dinner meeting Wednesday night. Six local agencies will be benefited by the campaign, the quota for which has been set at $10,200.

Case Grads Here To Join In Drive For School Funds

A nine-member committee representing about 45 alumni of Case School of Applied Science in the Mansfield area will meet at the Mansfield Elks club Friday to plan a campaign for a building and endowment fund for the school.

The group here, headed by W. E. Slabaugh, jr., sales engineer at the Westinghouse plant, will join 4,600 Case alumni throughout the nation in the drive for $400,000. Only graduates and former students of the Cleveland school will be solicited.

Already more than half of the $200,000 fund has been subscribed in preliminary gifts, leaders of the campaign said. A part of the money will be used for new buildings, it was said.

The drive will be launched Saturday afternoon with a nationwide broadcast over the Mutual broadcasting network. The program will be heard from 1 to 1:30 p. m. in Ohio over stations WHK Cleveland and WHKC Columbus.

Assisting Slabaugh in the campaign in the Mansfield area will be Paul R. Tappan, chairman of the special gifts committee; N. E. White, publicity chairman, and Committeemen Charles W. Conklin, Carl Schwier, E. K. Bacon and R. S. Barr, all of Mansfield; D. D. Smith, Ashland, and H. H. Freese, Galion.

SET AIR MARK, GLAD IT'S OVER

Young Fliers Land After Flight of Nearly 536 Hours.

MUNCIE, Ind. —(INS)— Two young Indiana flyers had their feet on the ground today for the first time since Oct. 1, and both admitted they were glad of it.

The airmen, 23-year-old Kelvin Baxter of Richmond and 25-year-old Robert McDaniels of Muncie, landed at Muncie airport at 6:42 o'clock last evening after setting a new unofficial endurance flight record for light planes of 535 hours and 49 minutes.

Both were so exhausted by their long imprisonment in the 25-inch wide cabin of their tiny four cylinder plane they could barely stand. They were greeted enthusiastically by a crowd estimated at between 10,000 and 12,000 persons.

CHECK RECEIPTS

Water Employes See Lowest Delinquency in Years.

With about 700 accounts still outstanding, water department employes today were checking collections of water rentals. Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department said it was apparent that receipts were the largest on record and that out of a total of approximately 8,500 accounts on the west side of Main street, about 7,800 were paid "on time."

He pointed out that the bills were for the designated collection period only and do not include delinquent bills paid before the accounting closes. The collection period opened. Oct. 1 and closed Oct. 15.

The record collection indicates the lowest delinquency in the past several years, he added.

JAIL RAMPAGE COSTS HIM $34

Danville Man Fined, Pays Damages to Bellville Lock-up.

It cost Carl O'Roke, 34, of Danville $34.15 to break the windows and furniture in the Bellville jail Friday night after he had been imprisoned by village officers on a drunk and disorderly charge.

O'Roke was fined $35 and assessed $9.15 costs by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch who suspended $25 of the fine on the condition that O'Roke pay for repairs for the jail.

Damages were set at $15 which included repairs for the jail stove which O'Roke tried to demolish. He paid the bill and was released from the county jail.

HUSKERS MEET NEAR DELAWARE

Ohio's Champ to Be Chosen In Contest Friday.

DELAWARE — (AP) — Forty farmers will get together in a corn field on the Lee Main farm northeast of here Friday to decide who's the best husker in Ohio.

It's a '76-acre field of hybrid grain in which the annual classic will be staged before an anticipated audience of 50,000. Robert Hart of Drake county, 1938 state standing corn champ, and Lawrence Wright of Pickaway county, state shock corn titlist of last year, will defend their titles against county champions.

The 1939 champion husker in the standing corn division will be eligible to represent Ohio in the national classic in Douglas county, Kas., Nov. 3. There is no national shock competition.

WOMAN INJURED

Indiana Resident Hurt as Autos Collide Near City.

An Indiana woman received body lacerations in a collision at noon today on route 30-N, three miles west of Mansfield. She was Mrs. Shurley Paget, 27, of Michigan City, Ind., who was hurt about the knees and head when she was thrown against the windshield of the car driven by her husband W. W. Paget as it struck the rear of a car driven by Charles C. Maloney, 71 Parkwood boulevard. Paget told state patrolmen the accident occurred when Maloney stopped to pick up a hitch-hiker.

BLAST DAMAGES HOME

CLEVELAND —(INS)—Explosion of a dynamite bomb today wrecked the entrance vestibule of the home of Joseph A. Mercurio in Suburban Lyndhurst. Mercurio, an excavating engineer, told police he knew of no reason for the bombing.

CHECKS STOLEN FROM JUDGE'S OFFICE, TWO OF THEM CASHED

A search was underway today for a check forger who stole three blank checks from the Richland county probate court offices and forged Judge C. J. Anderson's name to two of them for a total of $48.

Judge Anderson said he had assigned Harry Copper, former special probate court officer and city patrolman, to the case with the instructions to "find the forger and the three checks."

The investigation had revealed today that one of the checks was cashed in Wooster and another in Canton, leading Judge Anderson to believe that the forger may be located in the Wooster area. One of the checks was for $23 and the other for $25. Both were made payable to a "J. Arthur Evans," believed to be a fictitious name.

"Mansfield bankers became suspicious when the checks cleared here because they knew I never sign court checks personally," Judge Anderson explained.

He said the checks, printed with his name and the probate court title at the top, are always issued by a deputy, representing the court.

A sheet of three checks apparently was torn from the check book in the probate court vault before Oct. 15, since the two checks which have been located were dated early last week, Judge Anderson added.

The checks were taken from a loose-leaf book, leaving no stubs, and their theft was discovered only after court attaches found three numbers missing from the book. The checks are numbered serially.

Relatives, Close Friends Pay Last Tribute to Grey

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—Relatives and close friends of Zane Grey, novelist of the old west, will gather in a mortuary chapel here tomorrow afternoon to bid him a last farewell.

At the close of the private funeral services, his body will be cremated.

The 64-year-old writer who thrilled two generations of readers with 82 novels and true adventure stories died yesterday at his home in nearby Altadena. Because no physician was in attendance, a post mortem examination was ordered.

He sold 13,180,472 copies of the novels and true tales which he wrote beginning in 1904 with "Betty Zane." For eight years before then, following his graduation from the University of Pennsylvania, he had practiced dentistry.

Four years ago his "Riders of the Purple Sage," published in 1912, passed the 4,000,000 mark in sales.

In his later years he spent most of his time at his rambling Hopi Indian lodge on Santa Catalina island off the California coast or on fishing expeditions aboard his yacht, the Fisherman II, into the South seas.

HEROINE DIES

Gives Own Life Trying to Save Children From Flames.

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. — (AP)—Mrs. Homer Harmon gave her life in a vain attempt to save her two small children from fiery deaths.

Harmon, a rancher, found the body of his son, Homer, 3, on a doorstep and his wife and 5-year-old daughter Kay, dead in the kitchen.

Coroner A. O. Krohn theorized: The children's clothing caught fire as they played near a small blaze in their back yard. They ran to the house. Mrs. Harmon's clothes ignited as she tried to beat out the flames.

ORDER GRANTED

ASHLAND—J. C. Beal and Rev. C. W. Mayes, former secretary of publications and editor respectively of the Brethren Publishing Co. here have been ordered to turn over the keys of the plant, and to stay off the premises.

The two, recently dismissed by the board of directors of the publishing company, which is an affiliate of the Brethren church of which Ashland college is a chapter school, had refused to leave the premises or to give up the keys before the suit was filed in common pleas court here.

Hold Dedication Service For New Catholic Church

LOUDONVILLE — Dedication ceremonies for the new St. Peter's Catholic church yesterday was attended by 65 priests and church dignitaries from other cities.

Nearly 2,500 persons visited the Gothic stone edifice, and another 500 attended the dedication services.

Presiding at the dedication was Archbishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland. Among others attending were Auxiliary Bishop James McFadden of Cleveland, Msgr. R. C. Goebel of Mansfield, and Msgr. F. A. Schreiber of Akron.

The day-long ceremonies began at 8:30. At 3:30 p. m. Bishop Schrembs administered the sacrament of confirmation to a class of 44 members. Boy Scouts of Loudonville formed an escort for the church procession when it moved from the home of Rev. E. A. Kirby to the new building.

The building is one of the most attractive of any small community in the state. The main auditorium seats about 220 persons, while the small Sacred Heart chapel, at the left of the main entrance, has seats for 22 worshippers at daily mass. A library is included.

The walls are covered with murals depicting the events in the life of Christ and 12 stained glass windows bear the likenesses of the apostles. These were made in Munich. The cross for the crucifixion figure is of praper wood and hand carved by the Passion Players at Oberamergau, Germany.

There are three altars of pink marble, surmounted by rails of hand wrought bronze. The great window overlooking the main body of the church is in white and blue glass and shows St. Peter talking to Christ.

MORROW CLERK UNDER FIRE IN ELECTION CHECK

Letters to Prosecutor, and Secretary of State Demand Action Against White.

MT. GILEAD—Whether a Morrow county grand jury would be asked to indict I. B. White, clerk of the county election board, for alleged irregularities in the checking of the civil service referendum petitions remained problematical here today.

Letters sent to Earl H. Griffith, of Mt. Gilead, secretary of state, and Nelson Campbell, Morrow county prosecuting attorney last week demanded that some action be taken because White checked the petitions himself without calling in the Morrow county elections board. The letters were signed by P. J. Kirwin, secretary of the Civil Service Referendum Petitions committee.

Claims He Had Consent.

White admits that he checked the petitions without calling in the board but claims he did it with the consent of the elections board. White says he struck off two names from a petition bearing 100 signatures. He also admits that his action was not according to the letter of the law which requires that the entire board check referendum petitions.

Kirwin asked Griffith to remove White from office and was refused in a biting answer. Prosecutor Campbell asserts that Kirwin may present his evidence before a Morrow county grand jury if he wishes. Campbell has invited Kirwin to come to Mt. Gilead for a conference on the evidence.

White, a Republican, is a political associate of Mr. Griffith. Republicans brand Kirwin's action as an attempt to embarrass Griffith in his home county.

PASTOR BURIED

Rites Held at Shelby Today for Rev. W. F. Barber.

SHELBY—Funeral services were to be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the United Brethren church for Rev. W. F. Barber, 80, retired United Brethren minister and former Shelby resident, who died Sunday morning at the Otterbein home at Lebanon, O. Rev. J. C. Searle, pastor of the church, officiated and burial was made in Oakland cemetery.

Rev. Barber was born Sept. 21, 1859 on a farm near Shelby. He became a member of the U. B. church here when 17. He left Shelby when he entered the ministry in the Sandusky conference, being appointed to his first charge Sept. 6, 1892 at Leipsic, O.

He served as a minister 23 years, retiring because of ill health in 1913 while pastor of the Oakdale United Brethren church at Toledo. He had lived at the Otterbein home since 1933. He had served as pastor of churches in VanBuren, Helena, Mt. Pelier, St. Marys, McClure and Defiance.

Surviving are a son, Ora of Toledo; two sisters, Mrs. Elam Hines of Shelby and Mrs. R. M. Brown of near Taylortown and a brother, John Barber, of Mansfield.

SAVED $.75 BUT LOST 5 LIVES

Investigation of Babies' Deaths Shows Radiator Mended by Tape.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The faulty radiator valve which snuffed out the lives of five infants by releasing clouds of hissing steam in their nursery in the Perth Amboy, N. J., hospital could have been replaced at a cost of about 75 cents, it was revealed today by authorities investigating the tragedy.

The valve which was blown out was held to the radiator by adhesive tape, so badly were its threads worn, it was stated by Raymond C. Hunt, a heating engineer.

Four of the six babies in the room were dead when a nurse discovered the tragedy. The fifth, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Hatarick, of Perth Amboy, died last night.

HELD TO JURY

Loudonville Man Bound Over in Burglary Case.

ASHLAND—Howard Bowman, 29, of Loudonville, charged with breaking and entering an inhabited dwelling house, was bound over to the Ashland county grand jury without bond on being arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. H. Armstrong here.

Bowman is now being held in the county jail where he has been for nearly two weeks. He entered a plea of not guilty, and was remanded to the custody of the sheriff's department to await grand jury action.

The affidavit for Bowman's arrest was signed by R. G. Schnittke, night officer at Loudonville.

CHAPTER VII

Presently he strode back and got into the car. He laid a warm paper-wrapped package in her lap. She had eaten hot dogs and barbecued meats before in company with anxious-to-please escorts, but there was a high light about this moment that made it an occasion.

Even her voice now had lost all resentment as she said, "Thank you, Stanton—I'm famished! I'm glad you suggested this."

"We won't be so conspicuous if we get away from all these cars. I'll spare you all the embarrassment I can, Miss Rhodes."

This precaution because they were Miss Rhodes and chauffeur! Her face burned, but she laughed carelessly.

He began turning the car around and she said, "Perhaps I'm not the snob you think."

"You're not a snob," he assured her. "You're nothing you're supposed to be—thank heaven."

They were coming onto the main road again, and she wished the shadows were not so impenetrable. Facial expression often told so much, but he sounded perfectly sincere.

"But what difference does it make to you—what I am?" she was impelled to ask.

He sent the car a few feet along the pavement, made a quick turn, nosed the front bumper in by a fence overlooking what was a crowded public bathing beach by day, but now only a darkly deserted space. He pulled the brake, shut off the ignition.

He turned to her unexpectedly then.

"You ask too many questions I can't answer, Miss Rhodes. But I promise you, I'll answer them all—when the proper time comes. Try a sandwich—tell me if my selection meets with your approval."

* * *

She handed him one of the sandwiches with an exasperated sigh What next could she try to draw him out? She had shown him anger, then a consideration that was almost deference; yet he had given her no inkling of his past, present or future intentions. She would have to resort to other tactics, more subtle tactics.

She bit into a sandwich, found it delicious.

"Your food sense is perfect, Stanton. This ham is marvelous."

"Is that on rye or wheat? I bought some of each."

He turned on the dome light, leaned toward her.

She glanced up and her heart lost a couple of beats. Their eyes held for one long drawn out moment. A queer exciting warmth raced through her.

She saw a look of indecision flit across his face. He bit his lower lip, quickly switched off the light.

He said, "You have the rye—that's the best." But his voice sounded strained.

She was grateful for the darkness now. It would prevent her panic from showing, if she could control her speech.

"Yes, I like rye, too," she got out, trying to sound matter-of-fact.

Oh all this senseless talk! If only her heart would behave!

The silence between them now was a poignant thing. It was nearly tangible. She knew she must say something, anything to break up whatever it was that every second was drawing them closer and closer together.

"You've been—very kind to me tonight, Stanton," she told him. Then knew that was not what she had wanted to say at all. Why didn't she have the strength of mind to discourage him?

"It wasn't that I meant to be kind—when I first saw you. I was only trying to satisfy my curiosity. When I realized how misrepresented you were—how you needed some one to appreciate you—oh, what am I saying? What I have to tell you . . . " He hesitated.

When he did not go on, she asked. "Tell me, Stanton—please."

She held her breath for his answer.

* * *

"It's—impossible for me to tell you anything yet," Stanton said firmly.

"But Stanton — I insist upon knowing," Rita demanded. without the least hesitation.

He pushed his cap back on his head as if it annoyed him, tossed his half-eaten sandwich out the window.

He turned on the ignition, and said bruskly, "We'd better get going—it's way past your dinner hour."

He started to release the brake and she laid a band on his arm, felt him wince. Shelving her pride, she said softly, "If it's lack of money that stands in your way—I have so much of that—and so little of..."

And suddenly, she was in his arms, clinging to him desperately.

He held her as if he could never let her go. His lips touched her closed eyes, came to rest a long moment on her softly yielding mouth. He whispered hoarsely, "Rita, Rita—I love you."

"Stanton, dear," came from her tremulously, "I love you—oh, so very much!"

A little abruptly then, he released her. In a daze she pushed back wayward curls that had come tumbling down into her face, glorious seething happiness making her blind to everything but this man beside her.

"I'm glad we've settled so much, Rita. But—as for marriage now...."

Her laugh was like a sweetly muted harp. "I, know—you're too proud. It's—my money."

"Not at all. Your money doesn't interest me one way or another. There's a reason—a particular reason—why I can't marry you now."

Her heart skipped a beat. Something clutched her that was a deeper void than the black night about her. Here was another man—who wouldn't marry her!

She finally realized that they had rejoined the massed traffic which was moving swiftly along the broad seacoast highway. Now and then bungalow lights revealed the whitecapped ocean rolling in magnificently against jagged rocks, against sandy or pebbled beaches, which Rita saw but blindly.

Cool salty air beat against her hot face, stung her tear-brimmed eyes. Stanton was driving fast now, swerving in and out of the lines of cars as if bent on getting somewhere as soon as possible.

"He's in a mad rush to dump me at Seabreeze—end this talk of marriage," she thought despondently. Deep inside she was cruelly hurt. She was incensed at herself too for meeting his evident false overtures more than halfway. Whatever had possessed her?

* * *

They soon came to Seabreeze with its garages opening on the main highway and beyond them a rambling pink two-storied stucco house facing a large expanse of ocean beach, the high pink stucco walls on three sides of the house giving it perfect seclusion.

Stanton stopped the car by the one gate in the wall, got out and came to open the door on Rita's side. But her feet were already on the pavement when he reached her.

He offered gently, "Rita — please have a little confidence in me. I lo...."

"Stanton! Please address me as Miss Rhodes! You'll forget what happened tonight — we'll both forget it."

The words tumbled out fiercely, thinly shielding the tumult in her heart. Why, oh why, didn't she have the will power to discharge him immediately? But somehow, just to have him around....Oh, what a fool she was!

"But Rita — Miss Rhodes — you'll understand later. I can't ...."

"Good night, Stanton. See that the car is washed and polished. It looked disgraceful today!"

She had made her voice sharp, hoped it covered her agitation. She was trembling so violently now that she had difficulty in forcing her legs to move her away.

She made it up the brick walk to a side entrance of the house, her ears keenly alert to any urgent protest behind her. But none came. Stanton had let her go without making any fuss. Apparently he had settled back into his proper sphere with the utmost complacency.

Hobbs, beaming with satisfaction, opened the door, and Rita caught a glimpse of Lottie, the parlor maid, hurrying upstairs with an armful of linens. The servants always gladly took up their daily routine here. The light and hospitality and warmth of the house was pleasant after the outside black night coolness.

Rita sighed gratefully, and slid out of her coat.

Hobbs took it, inquiring, "Will you have dinner now, Miss Rita?"

* * *

She paused on the threshold of the livingroom, saw the long eucalyptus logs blazing in the rose marble fireplace. "Set a table in here, Hobbs," she ordered. "It looks so cozy."

Hobbs, taking her coat to a closet off the hall, murmured, "Very good, Miss Rita."

She crossed the high-ceilinged, oak-rafted room, her heels sinking noiselessly into the deep-napped Peking blue rug. She sank to a wide divan before the fireplace, stared moodily at the ornate brass andirons beside it, her humiliation making her wish she could sink through the floor. A chauffeur—even a chauffeur had no desire to marry her! He had said he loved her—but how easily that came from any man's lips. As for marriage—that was out! And he was the first man she had ever really wanted to marry.

Her eyes wandered dully over the lovely spacious room. Over the ash rose satin draperies at the long broad windows overlooking the ocean, the rose and yellow and blue-shaded lamps scattered profusely about the room, the rose and yellow and blue chairs, sofas, stools. It was her favorite livingroom.

But now, it grated harshly on her frazzled nerves. It was too gay looking. She put a hand wearily to her throbbing head. Abruptly she decided she wasn't hungry, that she couldn't choke food down.

She leaped to her feet and encountered Hobbs in the hall, wheeling in a tea-cart to set before the fire. She burst out as she ran up the stairs, "I don't care for dinner. Hobbs. I've—changed my mind." It was all she could do to keep back the tears.

Upon reaching her bedroom, she threw herself on the ivory silk spread on her bed. She covered her face with her hands, and broke into heavy sobs.

* * *

The bitter crying spell Rita had that night somewhat relieved the strain of her pent-up emotion, gave her strength to carry on. But from then on she canceled all engagements, and tried to live by herself as much as possible. Frequently when members of her crowd dropped in, they found her sitting on the beach in halter and shorts before an easel, and ridiculed her efforts to put rolling waves and blazing sun on drab old canvas. Or when they caught her reading a book, they called her a high-brow, and threatened to have nothing more to do with her. Painting and reading, however, soothed her nerves, and the good-natured taunts of her high-strung friends, their declaration that she was missing a lot of fun, made no impression upon her.

All through this time she had adroitly managed to avoid Stanton. When she was obliged to go to town or to see friends about Junior League affairs, she drove herself. But she knew Stanton must be avoiding her quite as determinedly, for she rarely saw him.

September days were hot but the nights were briskly cool, making snuggling under woolen blankets an agreeable necessity here at Seabreeze. Rita usually took advantage of the hot noon sun and did her swimming then. She swam expertly, and had no fear of going in the water alone, without benefit of lifeguard, although treacherous tides often made swimming hazardous.

One day on the beach when the sun was high and warm and exhilerating, she had just kicked off her blue sandals preparatory to going into the water when she was startled by a voice at her elbow, saying, "Excuse me, Miss Rhodes."

She whirled swiftly. Her eyebrows lifted at seeing Stanton before her in a gray sack suit. A queer little feeling of dismay clutched her. She stood stock-still, staring fixedly at him.

Her flushed face, her graceful little body in the blue satin suit made her breathtakingly lovely.

She lifted darken silken lashes, got out uncertainly, "Well?"

"I came to tell you—I'm leaving today—now."

"Le-leaving?" she stammered. "But you can't leave—on such short notice! What—what will I do—without a chauffeur?"

Quick Actions of "Vendol" Delighted Mansfield Painter

Bowman Street Resident Tells How Root, Herb, and Alkaline Medicine Relieved Stomach Distress, Gas, Palpitation, Acid Risings, and Other Troubles Due to Constipation. Advises Everyone to Try It.

MR. LESTER H. BAKER

"I wouldn't want my experience with Vendol published if I didn't feel that this splendid medicine would do the same for others," said Mr. Lester H. Baker, of 612 Bowman street, a well known Mansfield painter, in a recent conversation with the Vendol Man who daily meets scores of people in Central Drug Store, who call to learn about this medicine that grows more popular every day.

"For some time I had not felt just right. I was badly constipated and had to take a laxative nearly every night, and you know how this makes one feel. The constipation kept my stomach and bowels full of gas and made it so that every meal disagreed with me by the food's turning sour, and seemed like a lump would rise up in my throat that I couldn't swallow. The gas pressed my heart causing a feeling of short breath and palpitation.

"I felt almost desperate for relief and about this time I read of someone here in town, who described how Vendol helped him of exactly the same troubles, so I lost no time getting Vendol and a box of Vendol laxative tablets, and this was one medicine that did not fail me as so many others had done.

"The quick action of Vendol was a delight, as it soon had my constipation relieved; then all the gas, sour stomach, bloating, cramps, palpitation, and other troubles disappeared.

"I truly feel like a different person and give all the credit to Vendol, and advise everyone who is in the same condition to start taking Vendol at once."

Why not do what thousands right here at home have done; that is, give Vendol a chance to help you. Come to Central Drug Store, Corner Main and Fourth Streets, and let the Vendol Man tell you all about this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine. All druggists sell it.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble.

If it's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—goes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1939.

If progress is to continue some of the young folks will have to do more than sit around waiting for their pension to start.

The radio is a wonderful invention—making it possible to get misinformation from Europe so much quicker than during the World war.

The Halloween season seems an especially appropriate time to teach children that "personal liberty" has bounds—it may save them much trouble later in life.

Mounting Traffic Toll

WITH Richland county's traffic toll standing at 22, as compared with 19 at this time last year, it may appear that little has been accomplished by the emphasis that has been placed on highway safety.

What must also be considered, however, is the increase in number of automobiles on the roads, the human trait of carelessness, Ohio's loose driver's license law, and local laxity in enforcement of traffic regulations.

Criticism of careless, reckless and incompetent driving, should not, however, exclude mention of requirement for greater care on the part of pedestrians in attempting to guard against injury or death.

According to figures compiled by the National Safety congress, at least two-thirds of the 12,500 pedestrians killed by automobiles in the United States last year were violating a traffic ordinance or committing an obviously unsafe act at the time of the accident.

Observing the many motorists who disregard stop signs and traffic lights, cut corners, drive on city streets at too high speed, and ignore the rights of pedestrians, it can be plainly seen that education and law enforcement still have a long way to go before accidents can be reduced to a minimum.

But the fact remains that many lives could be saved, and injuries avoided, if pedestrians would develop habits of greater carefulness in crossing streets and in walking along highways, especially after dark.

Halloween Parties For Children

EVEN in so large a city as Boston an effort is being made to provide Halloween entertainment for youngsters, as a substitute for the rowdyism that is sometimes mistaken for "fun."

The Boston police commissioner, aided by men in his department, will play host, on Halloween night, to about 100,000 boys and girls in that city and parties will be held in district stations, schools and halls.

For a number of years, as a smaller city, Mansfield's Halloween celebration was sponsored by the late Fred Hunt, and a big parade, and other entertainment features, served to attract thousands of children to the downtown district through the evening and to do away with other less desirable methods of observance.

The desirability of planning a Halloween celebration as an annual community activity, under sponsorship of one or several organizations devoted to the welfare of young people, may well be considered. The idea of arranging Halloween parties for groups of children, in homes or other suitable meeting places has also been found to be well worth while.

Meanwhile make sure that children understand that October 31 is the Halloween date and any inclination toward premature celebrating should be ruled out.

America's Unsought Power

WHILE Europe fights to maintain or alter the balance of power in that area, world power has come to the United States unsought and almost unobserved by Americans. Whether we like the idea or not, world leadership has fallen into our hands.

The "series of happenings" which led to this situation were described the other day by Arthur C. Horrocks, public relations counsel of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. The World war changed our status from that of a debtor to the world's largest creditor nation, he said. Since that time three-fourths of the world's gold supply has drifted into our possession and been buried in Uncle Sam's big underground safety vaults. The center of the banking world has been transferred from London to this country "without realization that such a transfer was being made."

A recent editorial in the Saturday Evening Post expressed the same idea in slightly different words when it said that the "star of world supremacy" had come to rest over a people who did not seek it and did not want it and do not know what to do with it now that they have it.

It's a big responsibility, but maybe Destiny intends us to wield it usefully.

Explaining Industrial Upturn

AMERICAN BUSINESS, especially in the industrial areas, begins to suggest prosperity. Mills and factories recently idle, or working at fractional capacity, are taking on workmen by tens of thousands.

It means absorption of large numbers that have been dependent on WPA work. Such re-employment, with the money it pays out and the miscellaneous activity it produces, spreads until millions share in the benefits.

This rather sudden development is usually attributed to "war orders," and some business writers are saying that it is based not so much on actual war business as on expectation of such business. Others say that even if the war expands and continues for years, it may be quite a while before the belligerents with access to our markets start buying heavily.

Even if that is true, economists say, it need not hinder our prosperity wave, because the American people need vast quantities of goods of many kinds. The most important factor, perhaps, is general confidence.

Electric Nurse Forecast

THE photo-electric "eye" which has already found many mechanical uses may now be applied to medical use. Being more sensitive than the human eye, it is capable of detecting changes in the color of the skin answering to changes in the blood. Physicians suggest that it may therefore be used in cases of operation or serious illness, and may give dependable warning of the approach of death.

There might soon be an "electric nurse" not only to record a patient's condition, but to take charge in the absence of a human nurse and give warning of danger.

Cheese experts claim to have developed an odorless limburger—but fail to explain what distinctive quality is retained.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If Spencer Tracy is looking for a hat he left in a hat shop in Rockefeller Center he can have it by getting in touch with this department. It just fits me. I found this out under extraordinary circumstances, as it was a very foul day and I was treating myself to a new raincoat, the first I have owned in ten years.

While trying on the coat I remembered that I had bought a hat in this place several months previously, and had neglected to take the old one home with me. As I needed a good fishing hat, I asked the manager if he thought there was a chance to reclaim the old one, and he obliged by taking me down in the store room, where a lot of neglected hats were on pegs.

• • •

MINE was there all right, and so was Tracy's. They were much alike, except that his fitted me better, and I took it. Only after I got it home did I find the name, Spencer Tracy, under the band.

I'm afraid he isn't going to like the looks of the band any more. I hooked a couple of flies in it. And it has a little smear of oil on the brim from the outboard motor. But outside of that it is in first-class condition, and if Spencer won't accept an apology, he'll just have to sue.

AMONG the crazier organizations that lighten the cares of Manhattan's and Hollywood's hard-working folks is the National Dunking association. That tells you everything you need to know. Doughnuts should be dunked with nonchalance, and you can dunk up to the second kunckle without violating the dictates of good taste. The organization is genuine, all right. There are pins, membership cards and a "rule book" for all who desire to become members. This helpful little guide is called "Confidential Instructions" and sets forth such startling information as the following: There are no less than 981 ways of dunking a doughnut—all perfectly correct and in good taste. The "dreamy" dunk is acquired by gazing off into space through half-closed eyes—but be sure you hit the cup. To achieve the "ten little fingers" dunk, you simply acquire a strangle hold on the doughnut with both hands. For the "dunk oriental" you use chopsticks. The "Aberdeen" dunk is reserved for Scots, although you have to be a contortionist to be good at this.

The other thing: In keeping with all great fraternal orders, the dunkers have a secret grip, or handshake. There is also a "sign of the dunk" by which members salute one another on sight. But to describe this is more than my powers permit.

A TURTLE WITH HIS NECK OUT

Listen, World!

You Must Live It All!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"BUT you pay so much when you love like this!" she whispered.

"Then pay it, darling. Don't be niggardly with life. Open your arms to it. Be friends with happiness and friends with pain."

Brave words, aren't they? With a sort of challenging beauty ringing through them. They're part of Rose Franken's novel, "Claudia," which Mrs Roosevelt recently quoted. Part of yourself too!

The fear which chilled the flame of Claudia's rapture — you've known it. Felt it clutch you at the turn of some new trail . . . at the peak of some hard-won triumph. And your pride crumbled, your step faltered, your courage oozed away. "Hateful!" you've muttered to yourself. "Why must that shadow always come to spoil things? Why can't I make life safe or serene — no matter how hard I try? What's the use of struggling? Might's well give up . . . drift as the others do . . . play safe. Life isn't worth the punishment one has to take."

But the pain that comes with experience isn't "punishment" . . . any more than evening is punishment for dawn . . . or silence the penalty of song. IT'S JUST THE OTHER SIDE OF THINGS. IF YOU LIVE AT ALL, YOU MUST LIVE IT ALL.

You can't pick and choose . . . take one part of life and refuse the other. It's all of a piece—like the ebb and flow of the tide—bright crest, dark trough, so different from above, yet bound by the same swift current in their common source. You can't divide the tide—choose which part you'll have, crest or trough. Come ebb, come flow—come crest, come trough—you must take it all as it comes. Or stay beached forever.

"Pay so much for loving"—? Of course you do. Anything that's worth the risking, has its price. But why whine about it? Why class it as a Grief when it's GROWTH, instead? You wanted that rapture, didn't you? You asked for that risk. But they weren't possible for you, in your old form. You had to grow up to them . . . become a grown man or woman. And that adjustment naturally hurt. BUT WASN'T IT WORTH IT? AREN'T YOU THE PROUDER . . . THE WISER AND THE STRONGER . . . FOR THE STEP YOU'VE TAKEN?

OR WOULD YOU RATHER STAY A BABY FOREVER, PLAYING WITH BABY'S TOYS, BAWLING WITH A BABY'S FEARS?

Stop crying, "See what life did to me—my heart is broken!"

Shout, instead, "See what life did for me—my heart is open!"

For it's a poor, dark thing—the heart that has never been cracked. And a bitter, tight cell for the one who huddles within—walled in by his own stupidity or fear, conceit or complacency. Shut away, he is, as a babe unborn or the weary dead. Yet many a one goes down the years, knowing no other existence. Poor fools who'll never discover they've died because they have never been really alive!

OPEN YOUR HEART TO IT ALL . . . MAKING FRIENDS WITH GRIEF AS WELL AS PLEASURE. For, take it from one who has made them, you'll learn as much from one mistake as from a score of successes . . . and gain more in one brave loss than from a flock of triumphs.

DARE TO LIVE! Don't worry about the risk or loss or failure. It's never the dying that counts—it's NOT LIVING ENOUGH, that's hell. Life always has an ace up her sleeve for the lad who has the courage to take her . . . But look at the careful and timid who never got under way! Would you exchange your tear-rimmed, laugh-wrinkled eyes for the stare of their empty sockets? Would you swap the scars on your battling fists for their manicured futility?

OR WATCHING THEIR POMPOUS PRANCE BESIDE YOUR WEARY PLOD, DO YOU EVER REGRET THE LIMP YOU GOT FROM TRYING TO STRIDE WITH GOD?

Food and the War.

A story with a familiar ring comes out of Great Britain in the announcement that the government has issued a plea to a home gardening program under the slogan of "Win the war on full stomachs."

War gardens had quite a run in the United States during the World war and hundreds of thousands of back yards were spaded up to grow potatoes, onions, tomatoes and other vegetables. In a great many instances some remarkable yields were realized, while there were other cases where rankly amateurish gardeners got nothing except some prize blisters and lame backs.

Food is one of the most vital factors in the conduct of a war, and an army still travels on its stomach, even though it may be riding in airplanes and tanks. The British are wise in urging intense cultivation of gardens. Abundant food is necessary for maintaining national morale.—Columbus Dispatch.

Health And Diet

Football Injury Toll Is High

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE roster of football injuries is bound to begin to be compiled now. I still think that football, as it has developed in America, is the stupidest and most boring game to watch, and the most dangerous, least skillful and least remunerative game for the player.

But I have been saying that for several years, and I am regularly voted down as an old fogey, so I suppose I must make the most of it and try to express warnings that may save some suffering.

The football coaches and athletic directors for a long time ignored the demands for safer football, but were finally driven to admit about eight years ago that there was something in such a plan. At the American Football Coaches' association meeting in New York in December, 1931, they announced that they would prepare a report to be published about a year "after all the furore has ceased."

A good many reforms have been undertaken since then, and the emphasis for precautionary measures has been placed squarely on the secondary schools. Most of the injuries and deaths occur on high school teams.

Lack Equipment.

Too many such teams allow the young players to go into the game without adequate protective equipment. The younger the player, the more protection he needs, but this rule is not followed out in high school football on account of finances.

Most serious football injuries occur, not in big games, but in practice or scrimmage and in sandlot games. Parents, coaches and all others in authority should emphasize that no practice game or practice scrimmage is too trivial to forego the use of protective headgear, shoulder pads, etc.

It seems incredible that after all the warnings and disseminated knowledge on the subject, so many cases of infection and blood poisoning are reported following minor injuries, mere abrasions of the skin. These are neglected by coach, player and his family. It is the business of the coach to see that such cases are uncovered, not wait for them to be brought to him. One minute's inspection of hands, feet and skin would be sufficient to spot any abrasions or cuts.

Proper Examination.

Another cause is insufficient physical examination before the candidate is allowed to play. The question of injury to the heart from athletics is well summarized from an enormous experience by Dr. R. Tait Mackenzie, who says that it is seldom following severe athletic competition that one finds any injury to the heart, after a week's time, if the heart was originally sound. The last phrase puts the problem squarely up to the medical examiner of any team.

Coaches anxious to turn out a winning team allow star players to continue in the game when they are injured or exhausted, and thus a minor injury turns into a serious one.

Parents of high school football players should make sure that an adequate physical examination is given at their school, and that the coach regards the game as an athletic contest and not a money-making enterprise.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — A closely guarded secret of the senate isolationists is that Ray Moley, one-time Roosevelt brain truster and recently his spill-the-beans biographer, is one of their pricipal master minds.

Moley advises them on strategy and publicity, also supplies them with material for speeches and propaganda.

He is in personal contact with the group practically every day, via long distance telephone conversations with Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, their chief Democrat adherent. Moley often calls Clark off the senate floor and confers with him over one of the phones in the Democratic cloakroom.

Secret aim of isolationist strategy is to stall senate action until they have exhausted every means of pressure to line up house votes. They know they are licked in the senate, but believe they have a good chance to win in the house.

Privately, more than one administration leader agrees with them. A secret poll of representatives last week showed a majority of less than fifteen for repeal of the embargo. This is too close a margin for safety on so important an issue, and among themselves the administrationites are worried.

At last Thursday's cabinet meeting, Vice President Garner expressed the opinion that the senate isolationists were conducting a secret filibuster and urged that the whip be applied to speed up action. He warned that every day gained by the opposition gave them that much more time to put the heat on house members.

Hull and the Press.

A PRESS conference with the president is likely to be boisterous, but across the street in the state department, the conferences held daily by Secretary Hull are solemn affairs.

Hull stands behind a high-backed chair at the end of a table, his long fingers hanging limply down, his head bowed and his eyes downcast. He has all the appearance of a pastor about to lead his flock in prayer.

He is friendly and sweet-tempered, and his replies to questions, though seldom newsworthy, are given with disarming courtesy. When a question is asked, he raises his blue eyes in a glance that is almost tender.

Every newsman who attends these daily conferences likes "the old man," but everyone wishes he were less devoted to the twin gods of caution and dignity. They all feel like the news photographer who came to the department recently to take Hull's picture. As the cameraman entered the room, he sighed longingly and said under his breath, "Gosh, if there was only some way I could make the old man smile!"

Merry-Go-Round.

THE special division created by state department to care for U. S. citizens stranded abroad is gradually liquidating its work. Some officials, pulled in from abroad for this duty in Washington, are being returned to their posts . . . When British Ambassador Lathian calls on Secretary Hull, he declines to check his hat in the diplomatic reception room, leaves it on a messenger's table just outside Hull's door—so he can make a quick getaway when the call is over . . . One of Washington's hardest workers these days is Milo Perkins, boss of the stamp plan for distribution of surplus foods.

• • •

Perkins Politics.

ROOT of all the trouble in the wage-hour administration is just one person—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

To begin with, she alone was responsible for the selection of ousted Administrator Elmer Andrews, who should never have been named. He is a kindly and well-intentioned man, but the job was just too much for him. He had neither the experience nor the heft to swing it—as Miss Perkins was warned. But she urged him on the president and he took her advice.

Then when Andrews, prodded by several able assistants, did try to do something, his hands invariably were tied by red-tape bureaucrats in Miss Perkins' department.

One of the most active of these undercover axers was Personnel Director Robert C. Smith, a permanent civil service employe who constantly wrangled with Andrews over the selection of his staff. First class aides were repeatedly passed up because of Smith's meddling. With one word, Miss Perkins could have stopped this. But she never uttered it.

Smith has tried his red-tape tactics on other executives in the labor department, but they have fought back and Miss Perkins has backed them up. She didn't back up Andrews, with the result that his staff, undermanned from the start because of inadequate funds, was further crippled through his inability to get top-notch assistants who might have taken up the slack.

• • •

Fleming vs. Labor.

MISS PERKINS was not responsible for ousting Andrews. The president did that himself—under pressure from labor, irate over the virtual break-down of enforcement of the law. Out of more than 20,000 complaints, less than 10 per cent had been investigated and only seventeen actually taken to court.

Also, Roosevelt became angry at Andrews when near the close of the last session he suddenly asked for a deficiency appropriation larger than his original budget estimate six months before. Andrews' friends attribute the lowness of the estimate to meddling by labor department bureaucrats. Whatever the cause, it peeved the president and he ordered Andrews replaced.

His successor, Lieut. Col. Philip Fleming, an army engineer, is another Perkins choice. A forceful and experienced administrator, Fleming should make a go of his new job—if he gets the chance. But there is a strong possibility that he never will.

Laborites are up in arms over Fleming's selection. They have nothing against him personally, but they disapprove the principle of an army officer in charge of a labor agency. Miss Perkins asserts the laborites were sounded out on Fleming before he was named. They flatly deny this and threaten to fight his permanent appointment.

Meanwhile, as Miss Perkins has fired most of Andrews' able assistants, on the ground that Fleming should have a free hand to pick his own, the wage-hour administration is at a standstill. What little enforcement of the law there has been has vanished entirely.

October Music

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

EVERYONE knows what to expect of October—it brings much the same things every year. Harvesting corn and apples; digging potatoes; cramming of cellars and cribs. Changing leaves; the whiteness of first frost; fall rains; the honking of southbound wild geese. Yet nature never lacks variations of the age-old theme, and these only endear the familiar scene the more to those of us who love the land.

If I were a musician, I would set October to music. Nature has a rhythm, a repetition, that stirs the heart like an orchestral them. And even if a man cannot carry a tune himself, he may enjoy listening to one, or be able to feel a harmony.

There was a time, when, in our community, a person's musical reputation depended upon his ability to play a melody with variations. One of my clearest memories is of "Sweet By and By" as it was played on the piano by a pretty lady with brown eyes and very white hands, who used to drive with a horse and buggy from one farmhouse to another to give the youngsters lessons. She played that piece in a half dozen places upon the keyboard, and finally even with her hands crossed—which seemed to me, at the time, the very acme of accomplishment.

Whoever has listened to the lark's note, liquid and sweet, at sunrise of a frosty morning has had a musical prelude for his day. Whoever has joined the march of workers, the processional of teams and wagons toward the potato field or the corn harvest has felt the rhythm as well as the sweet of toil. And the distant peal of the dinner bell when the sun is high is a musical note that the dullest can appreciate.

It storms. A distant rolling bass of thunder almost drowns the main theme of work. From some safe haven the farmer listens to the shrilly rising wind, the crash of lightning, the steady staccato downpour of the rain.

It stops. Once more the day is like a pastoral melody. A whistling farm boy drives some the cows. From quiet trees the nuts are dropping. Sleepy turkeys jostle and chirp and flutter in the orchard trees at dusk.

October is the grand finale of the farmer's year. It brings fruition and fulfillment—glory of color, and a hint at the restful interlude of winter that lies ahead.

U. S. TO DEMAND RETURN OF SHIP HELD BY NAZIS

State Department Maps Action After Germans Capture City of Flint in Atlantic.

hardt was understood to have had difficulties in locating any foreign office official in Moscow because today is the Soviet "free day," a holiday.

There are no foreign consulates at Murmansk and American authorities had to make their inquiries through regular channels here.

Ordered From Norway.

Norwegian authorities ordered the German captors of the American steamer to take her out of Norwegian waters within 24 hours, and a torpedo boat escorted her beyond the three-mile limit Saturday morning.

The City of Flint was carrying about 5,000 tons of general cargo, destined for Liverpool and Glasgow. It was assumed in Washington that the Germans regarded the cargo as contraband for Britain.

International law provides for examination and detention of a neutral ship believed to be carrying contraband. If 51 per cent or more of the City of Flint's cargo would be held by a German prize court to be contraband, the ship could be condemned and would become German property.

On the freighter, the maritime commission said, were such items as tractors, lard, cereals, canned goods, flour, apples, wax, lubricating oil, cotton, sewing machines, plows, asphalt, pitch, grease, machinery, silk, commercial chemicals, disinfectants, feathers, rags, coffee, lumber, gauze, hair and wallboard.

The fact that the City of Flint was taken to a neutral port rather than to Germany complicated the situation, in the belief of legal experts. They said that only exceptional circumstances — bad weather, need of repairs or lack of supplies—warranted such action.

Must Be Freed.

The neutral country ordinarily tells the prize crew to move the ship along after the repairs are made or supplies taken. Otherwise, the vessel and her prize crew are interned, but the original crew must be released and permitted to return home.

There was speculation as to what the Russian government ultimately would order the 18 Germans on the City of Flint to do with the vessel. Several German ships, including the luxury liner Bremen, have been reported in Murmansk harbor since the early days of the European war.

The belief was expressed in some diplomatic quarters that the outcome of the case might shed some light on Russo-German relations.

This was the first instance in which an American vessel had been seized during the war, although cargoes of several United States ships have been taken over by Great Britain in enforcing her blockade against Germany. Britain requires all neutral craft to call at certain ports for examination. If the cargoes are held to be contraband, they are confiscated and paid for.

Seized Ship Carried 38 British Seamen.

TROMSO, Norway—(AP)—Norwegian officials announced today that the German cruiser Emden had captured the American steamer City of Flint as a contraband carrier after the steamer had rescued 38 British seamen.

The City of Flint, in the hands of a German prize crew of 17, put into Norwegian waters off Tromso last Friday night to land 38 seamen from a torpedoed British freighter, the 5,044 ton Stonegate and to take on fresh water.

The 42 crewmen of the City of Flint were still aboard the vessel when she disappeared Saturday evening, bound for Kola, Russian Arctic port near Murmansk, where she arrived Sunday night. The German prize crew was interned by Russian authorities.

Authorities here expressed belief that the American crew would be sent home from the Russian port.

They said that before she was stopped by the Emden the City of Flint had picked up from lifeboats 38 survivors from the Stonegate who said their ship had been torpedoed and sunk a week before the American ship's arrival here.

She was flying the German flag when she reached Tromso.

The picking up of the Stonegate's survivors was the City of Flint's second act of mercy since the European war started. She carried 220 survivors of the sunken British liner Athenia to Halifax. The Athenia was sunk Sept. 3.

Twenty-four hours after the Stonegate's seamen were taken aboard by the American vessel the cruiser Emden—bearing the same name as one of the most famous German raiders of the World war—seized her, said Norwegian authorities.

The Emden's commander declared that the City of Flint's cargo of tractors, leather and other shipments consigned to Glasgo and Liverpool was contraband and placed a prize crew on the ship.

The survivors from the Stonegate said they had had only a few minutes to leave their own ship before she was torpedoed They were exhausted from their long battle with the north Atlantic when their lifeboats were picked up by the City of Flint.

2 INDICTED BY ASHLAND JURY

Names Kept Secret; Affidavits Against Greenlun 'False'; 2 Cases Ignored.

BULLETIN

ASHLAND — Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling revealed this afternoon that the two sub rosa grand jury indictments returned yesterday were against Mark M. Lutz, justice of the peace at Brunswick, near Medina, and Walter Petchler, Brunswick constable, charging them with criminal libel in connection with statements they had made concerning Robert S. Greenlun, state highway department route marking superintendent in the Ashland division. Siverling said he expected the two men to be arrested by Medina County Sheriff Roy Kruggel this afternoon. They will be brought to Ashland for arraignment either late today or tomorrow.

ASHLAND—Two secret indictments were returned by the county grand jury yesterday as it concluded a special session called by Judge H. E. Culbertson. Two cases were ignored.

Whether or not the two indictments were in connection with alleged perjury against Robert S. Greenlun, state highway department route marking superintendent, once dismissed and later reinstated, now under suspension for "disciplinary reasons," could not be learned, but the grand jury found the affidavits against him false.

Persons who signed affidavits against Greenlun admitted the affidavits were false and that they knew they were false when they signed them, according to the jury's report, but no indictments were brought against them because they had been granted immunity in exchange for their testimony. The affidavits had been made up by other persons and they had signed them, members of the grand jury reported.

Greenlun, a civil service employe, was discharged a year and a half ago after he had testified against his chief, Ivan R. Ault, when the latter was being tried on charges of engaging in political activity while under civil service. Later Greenlun filed an appeal in common pleas court and was reinstated. Recently he was suspended for 30 days for "disciplinary reasons."

Judge H. E. Culbertson recently told the grand jury that he had been informed Greenlun's dismissal in the first place had been "done through malice" and asked for the investigation of the affidavits, which were brought here from the state highway department at Columbus. Two of the witnesses summoned by the grand jury were from Brunswick, a village near Cleveland, where Greenlun was credited with helping to break up a speed trap.

Arrests and arraignments on the two secret indictments are expected probably within the next few days, officials said.

Mt. Gilead Civic Groups Plan Two Halloween Events

MT. GILEAD—Plans for a two-night Halloween celebration are being made here this week by a committee of Kiwanis club American Legion members.

The committee is planning festivals for Saturday night, Oct. 28 and Tuesday night, Oct. 31. Saturday evening, free entertainment and a dance is scheduled. On Tuesday evening, Halloween night, Mt. Gilead merchants will offer 35 awards to winners in a costume contest. Entertainment by the Mt. Gilead high school band will feature Tuesday's program.

Proceeds from the two nights festival will be turned over to a fund for the construction of a recreation center in Mt. Gilead which will include tennis, volleyball, croquet courts and a park and picnic grounds.

The drive for funds for the center has already netted the Kiwanis committee in charge over $600. It is hoped that the festival will net enough money to reach the committee's goal of $1,000.

G. O. P. PUTS UP 3-POINT PLAN

then act, keeping in mind the interests of the city as a whole rather than those of any special group.

"Mansfield is a corporation with more than 50 million dollars in assets and it should be governed as a business. I shall apply conservative business methods to the operation of the city and work toward coordination of city departments with the object of eliminating duplication of effort, promoting efficiency and reducing operating costs."

Defending his policy of suspending fines in traffic cases, Judge Kalbfleisch, seeking re-election, said he had adopted that policy as "the only means of protecting car owners against irresponsible drivers."

He added that the practice helped the owner of a damaged car to collect damages and was not a measure of leniency.

"No person convicted in a traffic case leaves my court without paying a fine and costs," he asserted. "I try to make my court a people's court—one that can be of service as well as for meting out punishment.

In a talk against the Bigelow amendments, Wolfe said the pension plan would bankrupt Ohio and burden property owners with at least two new taxes.

"Bigelow's other proposal to reduce the number of signatures required to place proposed amendments or laws on the ballot would mean that every sort of crazy plan could be placed before the people who wouldn't have a chance to find out what they were about," he added.

Atty. Stuart H. Cramer, who presided at the meeting, introduced nine other candidates for municipal offices. They were Herbert L. Rinehart for auditor; Lydon Beam, candidate for solicitor; Will G. Herrold for treasurer; W. C. Mansfield for council president; James R. Anderson and James W. Peyton for councilmen-at-large; First ward Councilman Russell D. Porch; Frank R. Tingley and G. W. McFarland for Madison township trustee.

The second Republican ward rally is scheduled for 7.30 p. m. today in the Prospect park pavilion.

Activity Hits New Low On Democratic Front.

With the municipal election exactly two weeks away, activity on the Democratic campaign front hit a new low today with little prospect of any intensive drive for votes for another week.

Party leaders, however, were scurrying about today trying to stir up something for this week.

Atty. A. S. Beach, veteran campaigner, and Mayor Claude M. Hunter, seeking re-election, conferred for a half hour today.

After a hurried conference with Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist, the mayor departed for Democratic headquarters stating that "something" had to be done to create a little activity.

Nist went into a huddle with City Auditor Paul L. Kelley and Superintendent of Streets D. D. Orewiler. They were closeted in the civil service commission office.

While Hunter conferred with Campaign Manager G. A. Baer, Beach went into a huddle with Atty. George H. Blecker, seeking election as judge of municipal court on the non-partisan ticket.

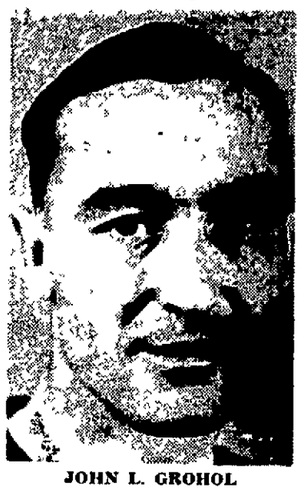
It was learned that Beach had complained to the mayor that the campaign was slipping instead of gaining momentum and that he had demanded action.

The Young Democratic club executive board met last night but today was still without plans as to what active part it would take in the campaign.

A spokesman said the organization was "ready" but that campaign "lacked leadership" to carry on the vote drive.

Atty. Marshall Moore said the group would meet again Wednesday night and "may formulate its own plan of action."

New Patrolman



JOHN L. GROHOL

FILLS POLICE FORCE VACANCY

John L. Grohol, 32, of 193½ South Diamond street, was appointed a patrolman in the Mansfield police department today by Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist to fill the vacancy created six weeks ago by the resignation of William Kneeland who quit because of ill health.

Grohol has been employed as a bus driver for the Mansfield Rapid Transit company for the past three years. His name was one of three certified to Nist by the civil service commission.

Grohol stood second on the civil service list with a grade of 89. Tony Colace was first with 89.5, while John Fisch had a grade of 87.5.

Born in Mansfield, Grohol has lived here all his life. He is married and has one daughter.

Willard

GUEST HONORED

Honoring Mrs. E. Heacock of Akron, a former Willard resident, who is visiting here, a group of members of the G.I.A to B. of L.E. lodge had a pot luck supper and party at the home of Mrs. Edith McDaniel Thursday evening.

Mrs. Heacock was a charter member of this lodge organized here 45 years ago, and was presented a gift by the hostess as a remembrance. Mrs. Frank Hartman was the only other charter member among the group attending the party.

Mrs. Leon Mathews spent the week-end at the home of her son, Leon Mathews and family at Columbus.

At a recent meeting of the Research club the president, Mrs. A D. Robertson, announced that the club has been invited to have charge of the breakfast for the meeting of the Lakeside Federation of Woman's clubs. The committee includes Mrs H. F. Murray, Mrs. J E. Wise and Mrs. Dale Williams

The Twentieth Century club's annual guest day will be held in the social hall of the Presbyterian church Friday

New Show Thursday.

"The Real Glory," with Gary Cooper, David Niven and Andrea Leeds, and which tells a stirring tale of the Philippine Islands after the Spanish-American war, will remain at the Madison theater through Wednesday, giving way on Thursday to a new screen bill and the stage show of Boone County Folks from WLW Cincinnati. The radio group "barn dance" entertainers have appeared at the Madison before, drawing big attendance from their hundreds of radio followers.

* * *

Popular Songs.

One of the popular songs of "Babes In Arms" is "I Cried For You," which is sung by Judy Garland, youthful co-star of Mickey Rooney Another number to remember is Opera vs Jazz which is cleverly done by Judy and Betty Jaynes. Mickey Rooney, who is a better actor than a singer, takes part in at least two of the musical number. This gay musical show belongs to the kids in it and they all work like troupers to put it over. It remains at the Ohio through Thursday.

"Nazi Spy" at Ritz.

Warner Brothers picture, "Nazi Spy," will be one of the two attractions at the Ritz Wednesday and Thursday. The action revolves around the work of the G-men in running down a Nazi spy ring in the United States. The story was written by former G-man Leon G. Turrou, who brought about the arrest and conviction of a number of spies. Edward G. Robinson, Francis Lederer and George Sanders are cast in major roles. The second film is "Safety In Numbers," a Jones Family episode.

Small Town Loves.

"Career" is a typical Phil Stong story for it deals with everyday people in a small mid-western community. Stong, an Iowa boy, writes of the people and the places he knows best, and in the novel from which this picture was made, he uses the fact that small town people never forget the long-ago love affairs of its citizens. Anne Shirley, Edward Ellis, John Archer and Samuel Hinds are in the cast. The picture is at the Park along with "Dead End"

Menjou at Majestic.

Adolphe Menjou has a role in "King of the Turf" which fits him in tailor-made manner. He is a big time track gambler who loses everything, including his wife and his small son. But even though he fails to climb back up, he makes up for his short comings by making a tremendous sacrifice in order to keep his son from following in his own footsteps. In "Private Worlds" Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer are doctor and nurse in a psycopathic hospital where each patient lives in his own world.
